WATCH

A politician said the other week:—"Watch oil; it will be the pivot of the future so far as War is concerned."

The pivot on which revolves the success of commercial motoring is the condition of the engine. This axiom is equally true in private motoring.

Commercial and Private Motorists therefore recognise that—

(1) Carbon deposit must be prevented;
(2) Friction reduced;
(3) Speed increased and maintained.

MIRACLE OIL

A Revelation in Lubrication!

This oil simply makes war on carbon deposit, friction, and other exasperating troubles only too well known to the driver.

The perfect upper cylinder lubrication adds power and speed, and the balance of advantages makes it a genuine economy.

Your Engine Insists on It.
Are you Listening-in to its Call?

Will it call in vain? Surely not, when it is backed by the testimonials of Commercial Managers, Tourists and General Motorists, and also Champions.

Miracle Oil Broadcasts Winners for Commercial Supremacy, and Luxurious but Economical Driving.

Motorists are not only using, but Talking Very Highly of Miracle Oil. It Cannot Be Imitated.

Books of the Week.

WILLIAM DE MORGAN.

The name of William de Morgan is familiar to a multitude of grateful readers. A whole series of novels stands under his name, "Joseph Vance," the first of them, published in 1906; then in succession, "Alice-for-Short," "Somehow Good," "It Can Never Happen Again," "When Ghost Meets Ghost," and several others. "Joseph Vance" was written when the author had reached the age of sixty-seven and it was almost a matter of chance that it was written at all. In 1901 de Morgan had in a spare hour written two chapters of a novel—"just to see what I could do," he explained subsequently. "I always loved grubby little boys, and I thought I should like to write a story of a grubby little boy. I began and got interested in him."

As it happened, the manuscript was laid aside, and long afterwards—in Florence, whither it had drifted with other miscellanea—was flung into the waste-paper basket. By chance Mrs. de Morgan saw it and, having read it over, was struck by it. Some time later, when de Morgan was ill in bed, his wife laid the despised MSS. by his bedside with a pencil and left him. At once he began to write, easily and rapidly, in the whimsical, colloquial, unstudied way in which he talked. He wrote without any glace towards a public or any thought of the exigencies of a publisher or the prevalent tastes of readers. No conventions or standards as to length or style hampered him, and so he wrote on and on, deeply interested himself in his characters, who, so to speak, made their own story. There was so much to tell that it did not seem as though the story could end short of the final dissolution of all of them. This leisurely manner of writing ran the tale into over a quarter of a million words, but at length it was finished—in 1904—and was sent home to England to find a publisher. Its formidable length and its style—which was somewhat after the Dickens tradition, and had nothing in common with the moderns—scared at least one well-known firm of publishers. At length, towards the end of 1905, it was accepted by Mr. Heinemann, and in 1906 was published simultaneously in England and America.

"Joseph Vance" was an extraordinary achievement for a man on the border of old age—there is such an atmosphere of youth and interest in life and vigour about it. Yet a young man hardly could have written it; for there is a breadth of sympathy, a charity and tolerance and even tenderness in the handling of the characters that come, if they come at all, only to those who have entered the serenity of the later years.

The book was an immediate success, and ran through many editions. Even before it had been accepted and while its fate hung in the balance, he was well into "Alice-for-Short," which also had a great popularity. So, de Morgan, having found his métier at an age when men generally begin to contemplate dismissal from the stage of life, continued to write story after story with eager zest. He was well through his last one, "The Young Man's Old Age," when death found him in January, 1917. He had lived a little over seventy-seven years.

De Morgan's proper profession, if we may so describe the work to which he gave over forty years of life, was the designing and making of bowls and vases painted in lustre, which he whimsically called "pots," and decorative tiles. These all were real works of art and were much prized by connoisseurs. They demanded not only artistic skill, but the solution of not a few chemical and technical problems in their manufacture. But de Morgan's kiln was never a commercial success, and some time before his literary efflorescence, his factory, had to be closed down. He always regretted that enforced suspension—so much so that, even when his full time and strength were employed in writing stories, the half-intention asserted itself in his mind of re-starting the pottery works with the money now at command from his books. That was not to be, but this looking back is an interesting indication of character. It reveals the tenacious adherence of the man to what he conceived to be his life task—the making of things of beauty out of clay. In spite of his dazzling success with the pen, and the applause and gratitude of thousands of readers he could scarcely take himself seriously as an artist in letters. His success was always a surprise to him.

Mrs. de Morgan, née Evelyn Pickering, who married de Morgan in 1887 and died in May, 1919, was an excellent painter in oils. Her work has received the approbation of excellent judges like Sir William Richmond, R.A., who contributes a preface to the biography. A number of her pictures are reproduced in this volume and, even without the help of colour, are very pleasing. In drawing and composition they show high artistic quality. The married life of these two, beginning when they were no longer young, and though both of them were unusually complete and independent personalities, was quite remarkably happy. "They were one in sympathy, in intelligence and its direction, one in tastes, and in perfect companionship. They teased and chaffed one another as schoolboys do; they were amused at each other's idiosyncracies, and I verily believe amused also at their mental similarity. He believed in her art and she in his." So writes Sir William Richmond.

Mrs. Stirling, who has written the biography, was Mrs. de Morgan's sister, and she is to be congratulated on her work. It is full without being tedious, and it conveys a very vivid impression of two very notable people. One must feel grateful to be introduced to such clever, artistic, unconventional and likeable persons as William de Morgan and his wife Evelyn. As is said in the preface, "it is unusual to find two people, so gifted and so entirely in harmony in their art, who acted and re-acted on each other's genius. Their romance is one before which the pen falters, but which, nevertheless, was an abiding factor in all they have left to the world." Sir Edward Poynter, P.R.A., looking after de Morgan and his wife one day, as they left his beautiful garden, epitomised the impression created by their presence. "There," he said, "go two of the rarest spirits of the age."

MEDIÆVAL POLITICS.

In 1903 Sir R. W. Carlyle and his brother, the Rev. A. J. Carlyle, published the first volume of their standard work, "A History of Mediæval Political Theory in the West." Now in the fourth volume, Dr. A. J. Carlyle traces the theories of the relation of the Empire and the Papacy from the tenth century to the twelfth. We desire to say of the present volume what we have said of its predecessors—it is a marvel of industry, enterprise, and insight. It speaks much for the pair of brothers that they have continued to work at their self-imposed task, and to turn out work that, so far as we can judge, is not likely to be superseded. We have been using the three predecessors of Volume IV. for year after year, and the more we use them the more we are impressed by the real hard labour that was bestowed upon them. The leading authors from the second to the tenth century have been covered in these three volumes, and every reference is accurate. This is much to say, and it is thoroughly deserved. So far for the industry of the authors. Of their energy there can be no question. There is a French proverb which states that it is the first step which costs. We have never believed it, for in our judgment it is the last step which costs. Most of us have little trouble in beginning, but most of us have the greatest possible trouble in continuing. Emphatically this is not true of Sir R. W. Carlyle and Dr. A. J. Carlyle. They have adhered to their labour for over twenty years. It is a long time to give to anything, but we have pleasure in assuring them that their volumes are in the hands of all scholars who care to know what men in the distant past really thought. Nor are we astonished merely by their industry and energy, for we are no less astonished by the abiding presence of that rare quality of insight. It seems to us that the authors are able to place themselves in the position of the men whose writings they are expounding. They look out on the mediæval world through their eyes, and they can re-think their thoughts in a manner which fills us with continual surprise. If we might hint at a defect, there is just this one. We wish, for the sake of brightening up their pages, the authors would refer more to the background of the men whose books they are discussing. At the same time, we beg to assure them that we are looking forward to the appearance of a fifth volume and of a sixth or a seventh or an eighth. For it is not to the credit of scholarship that for the first time we are given a survey of the dimensions of that in part before us.

We frankly admit that we are curious about the past, about the ways and works of men and, above all, about his thoughts. Lord Morley once confessed that he had no interest in the past except in so far as it bore on the present. We part company entirely with Lord Morley, for we care about the past even if it has no bearing on the present. As a matter of fact it has. Still, some people need to be convinced that there is an utilitarian aspect to any subject at which they work. There is this utilitarian aspect. Increased reading in the subject of mediæval political theory has had one main result on the mind of the reviewer. It has confirmed him in his opinion of the unity of the subject, of the absolute solidarity of the controversies of our own day with those forgotten conflicts which constitute the matter of the excellent fourth volume before us. Who wants to hear abou the Investiture Controversy? Did it not deal with the quarrels of the Holy Roman Emperor, Henry IV., with the Pope? Did it not deal with the fight between our own Henry II. and Thomas á Becket? Are not all these controversies as related to us as the discussions which may have agitated the mind of Methusaleh? Nothing of the kind. As if the modern controversy of the relations of Church and State, which gave such trouble to Bismarck and Cavour, and which have by no means been solved in our own day, was not the Investitute contest in another form. No one has taught so clearly as the authors that there is only one break in the continuity of political philosophy, and that occurs about the time of Cicero. With this one exception, political philosophy knows of no break, and indeed refuses to admit one.

Dr. Carlyle has much to say about the spiritual and the temporal powers from 900 to 1076 A.D., and, inter alia, we hear discussion after discussion of the methods of electing the Popes or electing the bishops. At this moment we have a certain pained amount of interest in persuing the pages of Dr. Carlyle, for we can enter into the mind of the centuries he is describing as we also are living under a regime of violence. For a whole century we find that there was no freedom of election to the Papacy itself, that Pope after Pope wore the papal tiara simply as the outcome of the violence on the part of the men who supported him. This is indeed evident in the pages of Dr. Carlyle. Pope Gelasius in the fifth century took up the position that "the two authorities (i.e., the Pope and the Holy Roman Emperor) are each divine, and are each supreme within their own spheres, that neither can claim authority over the other with respect to its specific functions." Dr. Carlyle excels himself when he analyses the enormous advance which Gregory VII. made upon this position. The quarrel, the grave quarrel, between the two heads of the mediæval Empire, Henry IV. and Gregory VII., is admirably analysed, and the narrative of Canossa is one of the best with which we are acquainted.

PATRICK PEARSE.

The burden of all the speeches and pamphlets of P. H. Pearse collected in this volume in Ireland a Nation, separate from England, and, as means to this end, Ireland armed. Whether Pearse was a Republican is not clear, but, probably, he would have ranged himself on that side as against any sort of association with the British Commonwealth. Pearse's hatred of England and of the Empire was a consuming passion, and it is in evidence on almost every page of these writings. He seems himself to have been conscious at times at least that hatred is a dangerous and self-destructive passion, for in his pamphlet on "The Sovereign People" he defends hatred as complementary to love. Of Mitchel, the revolutionary, he writes that "his hate was not of English men and women, but of the English thing which called itself a Government in Ireland, of the English Empire, of English commercialism, supported by English militarism, a thing wholly evil, perhaps the most evil thing that there has ever been in the world." This line of defence of hatred, separating the sinner and his sin in theory, yet involving them in a common judgment and doom in practice has been responsible for we know not how many crimes of religious persecution and political revenge. Even if some sort of ethical defence of hatred can be set up all experience of human relations shows how futile is this passion towards the betterment of social life and the comity of nations. The best of men, the most disinterested in their personal aims, cannot indulge in this passion and escape declension into excesses of destructive violence reprobated by the common conscience of mankind.

It is perplexing and disquieting that a man of Pearse's intellectual and moral quality should have been so imbued with the militarist temper. Or if not a militarist, so far as appears by this volume, he put all his trust in the sword and glorified the armed man as saviour of his country. He rather daringly quotes Christ in favour of the sword, "I bring not peace but a sword," forgetting that Our Lord's words have no reference to political or social changes, forgetting also the emphatic command, "Put up thy sword."

There is, of course, a valid defence of the use of force in human affairs; but Pearse's doctrine of arms is astounding. Thus he affirms that "nationhood is not achieved otherwise than in arms." He writes, "I should like to see any, and every body of Irish citizens armed. We must accustom ourselves to the thought of arms, to the sight of arms, to the use of arms. We may make mistakes in the beginning and shoot the wrong people; but bloodshed is a cleansing and sanctifying thing, and the nation which regards it as the final horror has lost its manhood. There are many things more horrible than bloodshed, and slavery is one of them." This last sentence would seem to indicate that Pearse's plea for an armed nation had reference only to the struggle with England for freedom. But it is just possible he had persuaded himself that even internal, social and political reforms on any big scale are never to be won except through blood.

He, a schoolmaster, a teacher of youth, constantly glorified the use of arms. Writing in December, 1915, he says, "The last sixteen months have been the most glorious in the history of Europe. Heroism has come back to the earth. On whichever side the men who rule the peoples have marshalled them, whether with England to uphold the tyranny of the seas, or with Germany to break that tyranny, the people themselves have gone into battle because to each the old voice that speaks out of the soil of a nation has spoken anew. Each fights for the fatherland. . . . The old heart of the earth needed to be warmed with the red wine of the battlefields. . . . When war comes to Ireland she must welcome it as she would welcome the angel of God."

If Pearse had lived till now, if he had known post-war disillusionment, if he had realised the unredeemed waste of the war, if he had known its squalor and misery for the men in the trenches, if he could have read that terrible picture of war as it is, Passos' American story, "Three Soldiers," if he had seen Germany herself demonstrating, "nie wieder krieg," "no more war," he would have toned down his bellicose writing. Pearse himself did not shrink from the ordeal of battle and the fiery test of his own doctrine and he endured the penalty of defeat with a firm mind. He was faithful to his own creed, and he has passed beyond all human challenge. But his doctrines remain and they ought to be challenged. If those doctrines were to prevail in Ireland, and the country be filled with armed men, and the great issues which from time to time divide men be argued by the gun, we might despair of our country. But we are persuaded better things of Irishmen.

A CRICKETERS' BOOK.

This is one of the most interesting and admirably written books on cricket that have appeared of recent years. It has been compiled from a number of articles which were contributed by the author to the Manchester Guardian and the Nation. That Mr. Cardus is a literary man as well as a cricket expert can be gathered from the numerous quotations which he makes from standard authors. His own style of writing is bright and crisp, with a peculiar vividness that makes the reader almost see the match in progress.

The book is divided, like Gaul of old, into three parts. The first is headed "At Random," and consists of chapters on "Bowling," on "Taking a Game Too Seriously," and a dozen or so of character sketches of famous modern players. Part II. deals with the Test matches of last year at Nottingham, Leeds, Lord's, Manchester, and the Oval; while Part III. consists of five chapters and studies in criticism of the Australians' play. From this brief synopsis it will be seen that a treat awaits the lover of cricket who has not seen this article previously. Those who can recall their youthful days and the zest with which they then read everything about cricket will be able to understand what an acceptable present a book of this kind would be to the average school boy. By reading it he would learn everything that can be said on the subject of the modern game and regarding modern batsmen and bowlers, but educationally he should find the careful study of this book a decided help to the mastery of a lucid style in writing prose.

That a vast number of people are interested in cricket is proved by the fact that, notwithstanding the demand for space in the daily papers, sub-editors earmark at least a column or two for the reports of the principal matches. The poet Wordsworth refers ot the fact "that nothing can bring back the hour of glory in the grass, of beauty in the flower," and so as we advance in life the enthusiasm with which we read of cricket encounters remains as a memory; but its virginal freshness is gone. Still the born cricketer retains his interest in this noble game to the last, and pities those who, from his point of view, waste their time reading about golf or football.

A book written about Irish cricket on the same lines as this volume would be very acceptable. Young men should be encouraged to play the game, as those who do for the most part lead clean and temperate lives and become valuable members of the community. Fresh air and exercise accomplish this and hence the value of cricket.

RECENT FICTION.

"Futility" is an unusual book, for it is neither an imitation of the typical Russian novel nor does it at all resemble the type of work represented by Mr. Walpole's "The Secret City." In "Futility" we see Russian characters, customs and contrarities, solely through the eyes of an Englishman stationed in Russia during the war. He does not attempt to explain them, since they are quite beyond his comprehension; but he does depict them most vividly and accurately, and with a fine sense of humour at his own inability to analyse them psychologically. The story of the family which to him stands for Russia is one full of comedy and tragedy, with no dividing line between the two. These people are pathetic because of the apparent futility of their actions; they are comic in their aimlessness and inaction, but they certainly seem to be very Russian.

"The Secret of the Shadow" is a rather far fetched story of the hidden identity of a gambling, dissolute, but aristocratic, man, who lived in America under an assumed name and married into one of the oldest and most noble Creole families of New Orleans. He died, leaving two very beautiful children in possession of some very vague clues as to their identity, which they followed up with most surprising and unexpected results. The prettiest part of the story is that which is set in New Orleans. Part II. brings us to Ireland and the ancestral home of the Thanets, to which Earldom the nameless boy lays claim; but from this point onwards the story becomes involved. It will take a very astute reader to guess the identity of this mysterious adventurer.

"Captain Quality" is a humorous romance of the days of gentlemen highwaymen, who loomed largely in the public eye as romantic and dashing heroes; of bewitching maidens who had "vapours" and said "Oh, la!" to their poetically inspired lovers, and of idle young men about town who drank, gambled and fought duels on very small provocation. Mr. Wyke Smith never asks his readers to take him too seriously. He is always ready to poke fun at his own flights of imagination; and the satire is never too definite to kill the actual humour of the tale. We enjoyed "Captain Quality" as a burlesque, but the story itself is excellent, too.

The title-page of Miss Bowen's new novel explains that it is taken "from the original Italian dramatic poem 'La Cena Delle Beffe,' by Sem Benilli, and 'rendered into English.'" Miss Bowen has fashioned a thrilling tale from the material at her command. Ginevra, the peasant beauty around whom the poet, Giannetto, weaves his plot for the disgrace of the hated Neri, is very real in her insolence and coarseness of soul. Only one fine character makes an appearance in the sordid tragedy. Lisabetta, insignificant little poor relation of the Visdomini, turns her love for Neri to excellent account upon his behalf.

"The Jest." By Marjorie Bowen. Odhams. 7/6 net.

In this book a quaint little Japanese maid, of rare beauty, is saved from the life of a geisha under a cruel master, by several American lads, who are on tour with their staid professor. "Jerry," the boy who is mainly responsible for her rescue, is the hero of Sunny-San's little dreams, and one fine day she appears at his studio in New York, in innocent oblivion of the embarrassment that ensues for the owner. The story is prettily told, and winds up in a thoroughly satisfactory fashion.

NEW ATLANTIC LINER.

UNJAMMABLE CABIN DOORS.

The new Canadian Pacific liner Montclare (16,400 tons) sails from Liverpool to-day on her maiden voyage to Canada. She is a sister ship to the Montcalm and Montrose, and completes the post-war shipbuilding programme of the Canadian Pacific, seven steamers, with a total of approximately 135,000 tons, having been added to the fleet during 1922. The Montclare is an oil-burner, and many new features have been introduced in her construction. The cabins have been fitted with patent non-jammable doors and locks which render the cabin doors unjammable, thus removing the possibility of passengers being imprisoned in their cabins should an emergency arise.

The vessel is fitted with a surgery and an operating theatre, a playroom and nursery for children, a cinematograph installation, etc. All berths, including third class, are fitted with spring mattresses. An educated lady official will travel on board as conductress to assist women and girls travelling alone, especially in the third class, giving all information required during the voyage, and arranging introductions to Canadian Government lady representatives or Y.W.C.A. officials, who meet the steamers at port of landing.

Dublin Castle.

Yesterday the last remnant of the Royal Irish Constabulary garrison left Dublin Castle, which was "taken over" formally by the new Civic Guard. Almost immediately after the ratification of the Treaty by Dail Eireann the Castle was handed over to the Provisional Government, but yesterday's little ceremony removes the last trace of the old régime:

> "Men are we, and must grieve when even the shade
> Of that which once was great is passed away."

Probably there is no institution in Europe which has been the object of such fierce criticism in its time as Dublin Castle. It is a repository of many memories—some proud, some sad, and some, alas! too bitter. It remains now a monument of bygone days, and its chequered history will do much to help, as well as to warn, its new masters in the performance of the great task which lies at their hands. With the Castle the Royal Irish Constabulary passes into history, and there can be few men of Irish blood who do not feel a pang at the disappearance of this splendid force. Irishmen differ in politics, but they are at one in their admiration of human bravery, and the steadfastness of the Royal Irish Constabulary throughout the most terrible ordeal to which a force of its kind ever was exposed will stand for all time as a shining example of Irish valour. Our country is on the threshold of a new era. For better or for worse, Ireland's destinies are in Irish hands, and the future will be of our own making. If the new Ireland is served by a force which will uphold the best traditions of the Royal Irish Constabulary she will be fortunate, indeed.

A Greek Gift.

No sooner has a lull occurred in the controversy concerning German reparations than a new crisis has begun to develop in the Near East. Truly there is no rest for Allied statesmen in these troubled times. A few weeks ago, when the Greek King's plan to march on Constantinople was nipped in the bud by the Allied Powers, the Government at Athens issued a grandiloquent proclamation in which the vilayet of Smyrna was declared to be an autonomous State. The Treaty of Sèvres, our readers will remember, provided originally for the annexation of Smyrna by Greece, but local feeling on the matter was so high, and France raised such serious objections in the councils of Europe, that the future of the famous town was left in abeyance. All sorts of ingenious schemes were brought forward. One proposed that Smyrna should have a Greek Government, but a Turkish Governor; another reversed the process, leaving the town in Turkish hands under a Christian Governor; while a third suggested its adoption by the already overburdened League of Nations. In spite, or possibly as a result, of all these various proposals, nothing was done, and to-day nobody seems to know exactly to what authority Smyrna owes allegiance. It is in the occupation of the Greek Army for the time being, and the obstinacy of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, who has refused point-blank to discuss any solution of the problem which does not restore full Turkish sovereignty has been the chief cause of the long delay in determining its future status. King Constantine, by his "gift" of autonomy, obviously tried to force the Allies' hand; but on this, as on every other previous occasion, he has failed. The Allied Legations in Athens have handed a collective Note to M. Baltazzis, the Greek Minister for Foreign Affairs, in which they inform the Greek Government that its proclamation "tends to create a new political and administrative régime in Asia Minor," and that the Allied Governments "make express reservations on such a principle." In plain English, they will not countenance "Tino's" plan.

It is quite obvious that the proposed "autonomy" of Smyrna would be a sham. It would be the same kind of "autonomy" that the Kaiser conferred upon Poland, Finland, and Lithuania during the war, and would make Smyrna simply a vassal State of Greece. For that reason alone, apart altogether from the fact that Constantine has no more right to dispose of Smyrna's future than the King of the Hedjaz, the Allies could not give their consent to the Greek proposal. Nevertheless, the proposal does represent a definite attempt to reach finality in Near Eastern affairs. The Allies, very properly, have rejected it, but now they must produce an alternative with the least possible delay. Many serious blunders have been made by European statesmen since the end of the war, but their vacillating policy towards the Near East has been by far the worst of all. Nearly four years have passed since Turkey surrendered to the Allies. Yet peace in Asia Minor seems to be just as far off to-day as ever it was, and no really honest effort has been made to bring about a permanent settlement of the many problems which remain to be solved. The whole world of Islam has been kept in a condition of chronic unrest since the Armistice. Pledges have been given in one breath and broken in the next. Britain has pursued one policy, of sorts; France has pursued a policy which is diametrically opposite; the policy of Italy has cut right across them both. In the meanwhile Turk and Greek have been at each other's throats in Asia Minor, Arab and Jew have been sowing the seeds of bitter enmity in Palestine, while across the Jordan, and up among the Kurdish mountains, armed bands have been ravaging the land. To-day the former territories of the Sultan are in a state of almost hopeless confusion. Even in the worst days of Abdul Hamid there was not so much cause for complaint as there is now; and the Allies are so much pre-occupied with their domestic affairs that they do not seem to care what happens. It is rumoured that a conference on the whole question of the Near East may be held in Venice next month. All friends of peace will hope sincerely that such a conference will be held; for, until the Turkish problem has been settled once and for all, there can be no possibility of the world's economic recovery.

Mexican Oil.

Much adverse comment will be aroused in American financial and political circles by the announcement which has just been made by General Calles, the senior member of President Obregon's Cabinet, that the Mexican Government does not propose to ask Congress to amend Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution. This article, which was added to the Constitution in 1917, asserts that all minerals situated in Mexican territory belong to the Mexican Government. Properly construed, such a declaration of national right was unexceptionable. Señor Carranza, however, immediately issued a decree declaring Clause 27 to be retrospective in action. This meant that the vast majority of oil wells, oil-bearing properties, mines and mineral lands, the bulk of which had been acquired by foreign investors, mostly American and British, were now declared to be the property of the Mexican Government. It was, in effect, a case of wholesale confiscation, but only on paper, because the Mexican Government made no attempt to enforce the decree. In July of last year President Obregon invited the Mexican Chamber to authorise him to take the matter up with the United States with a view to getting rid of the impossible and financially disturbing results of the Carranza decree, but the Chamber declined. The Mexican Supreme Court, however, has modified its effects very considerably by declaring that the decree cannot support the confiscation of improved oil lands. The Court holds, however, that it is effective as regards lands still unimproved, and to this state of affairs the United States Government—and, doubtless, the British Government also—take strong exception. As a matter of fact, the United States would not permit the Mexican Government to confiscate these unimproved holdings of American citizens and American corporations. However much they may deny it, both the Mexican Ministry and the Mexican Congress are using the Carranza decree as a counter with which to bargain for American recognition. The British Government is quite satisfied to leave the matter in the hands of the United States, which, in protecting American interests, protects all.

The Sovereign Alchemist.

Those who make merry, decorously and at reasonable intervals, of course, with the jocund grape will be cheered by the declaration of the expert of the Petit Journal, who has been making a survey of the French vineyards, that the 1922 wine harvest promises to be a "bumper" one, both in quantity and quality. No more satisfactory way of assisting our impoverished Ally to regain her feet could be devised than the purchase in generous quantities, and at prices eminently satisfactory to both parties, of the sovereign produce of her sunny slopes. But alas! the French complain, of what use to grow "bumper" wine harvests when there is no market for the precious stuff? The United States is dry, Norway and Finland likewise, while Sweden and Holland place a severe check on the importation of foreign wines. Germany cannot afford to buy and the Russian market is, of course, gone. Only Belgium and Great Britain and Ireland remain on the list of steady buyers. Here in Ireland the civilised habit of drinking light wines at meals, with a possible glass of port, if one is of the old school, afterwards, prevails as strongly as in any country where the price of wine makes it a luxury drink. Though our era of prosperity is not immediately visible, and the lavish expenditure that once made Dublin so gay as well as so expensive a capital is a thing of the past, we shall in all probability continue to maintain by one and the same operation the good-will of our French neighbours and a warm, but respectful, friendship for the Daughter of the Vine.

OBITUARY.

VISCOUNT EXMOUTH.

Viscount Exmouth died yesterday in a London nursing home, where he had been operated on for an internal complaint. He was 32 years of age, and a bachelor. During the war he was an officer in the Royal Air Force. He succeeded at the age of eight to a viscounty, the first holder of which was the famous English Admiral, Edward Pellew, who, for his services against the French, just over 100 years ago, received in turn a barony and a viscounty. The heir to the title is a cousin, Mr. Henry Edward Pellew, who is a grandson of the first viscount, and was born in 1828. He resides in Washington, United States of America.

REV. R. G. PROCTOR, B.D.

We regret to announce the death of the Rev. Richard Gibbon Proctor, B.D., Rector of St. Jude's Church, Kilmainham, Dublin, which occurred suddenly at Bray on Wednesday. Mr. Proctor was a graduate of Dublin University, where he took the B.A. degree in 1903 and the B.D. in 1911. He was ordained deacon in 1902, and in that year was appointed curate of New Ross, County Wexford, and in 1904 curate of Cloyne, where he remained until 1906. In that year he came to St. Mary's Dublin, where he remained until 1914, when he was appointed Incumbent of St. Jude's. He was appointed Rural Dean of Newcastle in 1920.

CANON ALFRED EDWARD HUMPHREYS.

Canon Alfred Edward Humphreys, Vicar of St. Michael's Stonebridge Park, Willesden, since 1907, and a distinguished man of letters, died in tragic circumstances yesterday morning. In accordance with his almost daily practice, he went for a row on the canal at Wembley, and later he was found unconscious in a ditch by the side of the canal. He was taken home, but never recovered consciousness, and died from cerebral hemorrhage, accelerated by undue exertion. He was in his eightieth year.

REV. FATHER BERNARD VAUGHAN

The Rev. Father Bernard Vaughan, who was removed to a Sheffield nursing home from Derwent Hall, where he was visiting Viscount FitzAlan, had a comfortable day yesterday, and is making satisfactory progress.

SOUTH HACKNEY ELECTION.

Polling takes place to-day in South Hackney. The two candidates—Captain Erskine Bolst, Coalition, and Mr. Holford Knight, Labour—addressed their final meetings last night. There was again considerable heckling during the Coalition candidate's speeches, and in one meeting his opponents sang "The Red Flag," in response to which Captain Erskine Bolst, from the platform, led his supporters in an enthusiastic rendering of the National Anthem. The poll will be declared to-night.

"WIRELESS" COMPETITION.

STOCKHOLM, Thursday.

The Swedish Telegraph Board has entered into contract with the Radio Corporation of America for the delivery, at a cost of 432,500 dollars, of wireless apparatus for the equipment of a giant station that is to be erected on the west coast of Sweden.

The establishment of the station has been approved by Parliament, and is to be ready by the end of 1923. Rates will be considerably lower than those at present charged for communication via Norway.—(Reuter.)

LADY GLADSTONE.

Lady Gladstone has undergone a serious operation. The operation was successful, and her condition is as favourable as can be expected.

ABBEY THEATRE.

A MORALITY AND A COMEDY.

The Horse Show week programme for the Abbey Theatre provided two plays last night which had not been presented since the re-opening of the Theatre, and again there was a large attendance. They were "The Hour Glass" and "The Suburban Groove," both produced by Mr. Lennox Robinson, and the morality of the one and the mild satire of the other were admirably treated.

"The Hour Glass," the one-act play in which Mr. W. B. Yeats points his moral, offered Mr. Frank Fay an opportunity which he turned to advantage to portray the wise man who desperately sought to undo his materialistic teachings. The part was admirably filled. Michael J. Dolan was an excellent study in the character of the fool; Miss May Craig, Miss Eileen Crowe and Messrs. James Shields, Gerard Fay, P. J. Carolan, Maurice Esmonde, Tony Quinn and Walter Dillon completed the cast.

Mr. W. F. Casey's "The Suburban Groove" was responsible for a cheerful house. Miss Sara Allgood as Mrs. O'Connor adapted herself well to the motherly rôle, and justified the woman's right to change her mind. Miss Eileen Crowe introduced that coyness that so thinly veiled the choice of a lover, and Mr. F. J. McCormick added to the gaiety of the "groove" in his attentions to the object of his affection. Messrs. Peter Nolan, Tony Quinn and Michael J. Nolan were also very much at home in their parts.

To-night "The Workhouse Ward," "In the Shadow of the Glen," and "The Building Fund" will be produced.

BEVAN'S RETURN.

TO BE BROUGHT BEFORE MAGISTRATE TO-DAY.

The arrival of Mr. Gerard Lee Bevan at Waterloo Station, London, at one o'clock yesterday, provoked no demonstration on the part of the large and curious crowd that had gathered to get a glimpse of the financier. Miss Bevan travelled up to Waterloo in the same train as her father, but not with him, and did not see him after having a short interview at Southampton, when he had landed from the Caronia, which brought him from Hamburg.

All the passengers on the boat train had passed through the barriers before Bevan, escorted by Detective-Inspector Smith and Detective-Sergeant Hippisley, of the city police, who had brought him all the way from Vienna, stepped from his specially reserved compartment in the fore part of the train. As he did so, men and women craned their necks for a hurried view of him. Then quietly, and amidst general silence, he was conducted through the barrier to a waiting taxicab.

Bevan walked erectly through the crowd, with a slight smile, and his hands clenched by his side. The party were quickly in the cab and on their way to Moor lane police station. When Bevan arrived at the station there were very few people about, but in an instant the news spread that he was home, and a stream of people collected.

Bevan again showed a faint smile as he stepped briskly from the cab and hurried into the police station. He was then formally charged, and was taken to the City Police Headquarters at Old Jewry, where he was placed in a cell.

At the conclusion of the ordinary business of the Court at the Guildhall yesterday, Mr. Alderman Batho stated—"I should like to say before I leave this Court that, should any urgent business arise, I shall be prepared to take it any time to-day." This would have been a departure from the usual practice, and was taken to indicate that Bevan would be brought into the Court in the afternoon, but later it was announced that he would not appear until this morning at eleven o'clock.

It appeared that the prisoner was worn and weary after the long journey, and so the authorities decided to postpone his first appearance in Court.

JAPANESE NAVAL REDUCTIONS.

TOKIO, Wednesday.

A preliminary Navy "scrapping" programme was announced to-day, according to which various warships will be transferred, after removal of their turrets, to different yards to be broken up. The vessels will wait till the Washington Treaty comes into operation.—(Reuter.)

LONDON LETTER.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE'S FUNERAL.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

Not for a long time, if ever, has the funeral of any private citizen attracted so much public attention as that of Lord Northcliffe to-day. The names of those who attended the Service in the Abbey fill more than two closely printed columns in the Evening News. There was an unprecedented gathering of journalists from all parts of the Empire and from foreign countries. Many of them who attended from Fleet street and its neighbourhood formed up in Salisbury square and marched in procession to the Abbey.

The Prince of Wales was represented by Brigadier-General Trotter, and the Prime Minister by Sir Edward Grigg. The French and American Ambassadors, the Serbian Minister, and the Rumanian Chargé d'Affaires attended in person, as did Sir Richard A. Squires, the Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and other representatives of the island with which Lord Northcliffe was so closely connected. Nearly all the other Overseas Dominions and Colonies were represented by their High Commissioners and Agents-General, and there were, in addition, many notable figures in literature, science, art, and commerce. The staffs of the various newspapers and other enterprises in which the "Chief" was interested helped to swell the gathering.

An immense number of wreaths and other floral offerings had been sent by friends and admirers—so many that it required eight motor cars to convey them to the Marylebone Cemetery, Finchley, where the actual interment took place. Crowds filled Parliament square to view the procession to the Abbey and lined the long route to the final resting place.

THE REPARATIONS COMMISSION.

Contrary to expectation, the Reparations Commission, which has to make so fateful a decision, did not assemble to-day. The first sitting will be held to-morrow or Saturday, and the first business will be to hear what the German delegates have to say. This is obviously the proper course to take, though it may be doubted whether the Germans can have any facts to bring forward that are not already familiar to the Commissioners, and it has the further advantage of imposing another period of delay before the decision has to be given.

During the interval excitement will have time to cool down, and the statesmen whose disagreement has led to the present impasse can, if they choose, reconsider their attitude. If a theory advanced by the Pall Mall Gazette were correct, there would be good hope of a favourable outcome. It writes: "M. Poincaré's real exertions, we suspect, are directed to finding some means of retreat from a position which he has been driven to defend only because of his countrymen's distance from economic realities. He will have every assistance from this country in such endeavours, since Englishmen are anxious to extend, rather than narrow the range of international co-operation. We are all for the Entente so long as it can be conducted upon a basis of political sanity."

Speculation is already taking place as to the venue of the next conference of Allied Ministers. Not until M. Poincaré was actually leaving London did the Belgian Prime Minister relax his efforts to bring the London Conference together again, and it is believed that he is now working to arrange a meeting to be held in Brussels. Unless one side or the other, however, has intimated an abandonment of the policy which brought about the London deadlock, it is not easy to see how any good could result from another meeting so soon, especially after the support accorded by the French Cabinet to the attitude taken up by M. Poincaré. It is understood that a new French Note will be presented to the Allies, including the United States, in which emphasis will be laid on the case of France. The most promising meeting, however, would be one called together as a result of communications to their Governments from the delegates on the Reparations Commission. Such a conference would be for the purpose of considering and deciding specific points brought forward by the Commission, and slight opportunity would be given for the kind of academic discussion which has been so fruitless.

FRENCH WINE.

If the present prospect of a bumper wine-harvest in France is realised, our Allies should have an excellent opportunity of cementing the Entente in practical fashion. England is now almost the only great market left to the French wine-producers, but of late years they have done very little to encourage it. Before the war one could get a quite drinkable claret for eighteenpence a bottle, or, roughly, a couple of francs. Now the same class of wine costs from three to five shillings a bottle, or, at the present rate of exchange, from eight to fourteen francs. There has been a slight increase in the duty, and the cost of labour and materials has, of course, increased considerably; but, even so, a rise in price of three hundred per cent. seems to me hard to justify.

The report that Sir Robert Horne has called for further economies on the part of the spending departments may be well founded, as may also be the suggestion that behind the economies lurks a desire by the Government to be able to reduce the liquor taxes in the next Budget. It is quite likely that advantage will be taken of the Budget to be introduced next year to go to the country on the somewhat commonplace cry of "Cheaper beer." It is the belief of many old Parliamentarians that an election would have been held before this had a suitable occasion presented itself; but with the unemployed still something like a million and a half, and with international affairs in a distinctly fluid state, the conditions were not capable of being turned to good advantage by the Coalition organisers.

SIR ROBERT HORNE.

By the way, the rumour is again revived that Sir Robert Horne may leave politics and return to his first love, the law, by being appointed Lord Justice Clerk in Scotland. Mr. Munro, the Secretary for Scotland, has first claim on the post, but is believed to prefer the Ministerial to the Judicial bench. He has certainly done very well in the House of Commons, but so has Sir Robert Horne, whose loss would be sincerely regretted by the Conservative wing of the Coalition. Nor, I think, would they welcome the promotion of Mr. Churchill to the Chancellorship, on which he has long set his ambitions.

SOUTH AFRICA AND CATTLE IMPORTS.

The High Commissioner for the Union of South Africa is advised that his Government is about to issue a proclamation, withdrawing the prohibition of the importation of live stock into the Union of South Africa from the United Kingdom.

SUPPOSED DROWNING CASE.

An unknown man who went out in a rowing boat at Eastbourne on Tuesday evening and did not return is believed to have been drowned. The empty boat has been picked up in the Channel by a steamer and taken to Plymouth.

THE RAILWAY COMMISSION.

Mr. O'Dea, a member of the Irish Railway Commission, informs us that the separate report which he is making as a result of the recent inquiry has not yet been presented to the Government. This report will not be available for some time yet.

DUNDALK RECAPTURED

IRREGULARS' FLIGHT TO THE MOUNTAINS.

PRISONERS LIBERATED BY TROOPS.

CITIZENS WELCOME DELIVERERS.

Dundalk has been recaptured by the national troops. The irregulars have fled, and are believed to be hiding in the Carlingford Mountains. The troops encountered very little opposition on entering the town.

In their operations around Dundalk the troops have taken eighty prisoners, with large quantities of arms and ammunition.

THE RELIEF.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

The following statement has been officially issued by the Army Publicity Department:—

"August 17th, 1922, 4 p.m.

"Dundalk has been recaptured by the troops, and members of the forces held by the irregulars set at liberty.

"The prison and the station are now occupied by the troops, and the greater part of the irregulars have retreated from the town towards Greenore and Omeath.

"Some of the streets were mined by the irregulars. A petrol lorry passing over the square in the town was blown up by one of the mines, and one civilian was killed.

"Troops advancing in a Lancia car opened fire on the irregulars running away, two of whom were killed. One civilian was wounded by the fire."

THE IRREGULAR COUP.

HOW IT WAS EFFECTED.

The following account of the occupation of Dundalk by the irregulars has been issued by the Army Publicity Department:—

"With the recapture of Dundalk by the troops, details are now available as to the occupation of the town by the irregulars. About four o'clock on the morning of August 14th a sentry inside the main gate of the military barrack heard a suspicious noise, and had the guard called out. The Orderly Officer on duty went to investigate, and found a cable laid outside the barrack. As he approached to cut it, a heavy fire was opened on him by a machine gun, and he was obliged to take cover. Just as fire was opened on the Orderly Officer, mines were exploded simultaneously at the following places:—Barrack gate, leading on to Point road; the barrack hospital, a block containing officers' quarters, two mines in block containing headquarters offices, Orderly Office (destroying guard room). A mine was also exploded between the ball alley and hospital. Two other mines—one underneath the Officers' Mess and the main gate—failed to explode.

"At the time of these extensive mine explosions there were close on 200 Irish soldiers in the barrack. The officers were all knocked out of action by the explosion, one mortally wounded, seven others less seriously wounded, and one buried in débris. The explosion at the gate on Point road wrecked the gate, and killed the sentry. The explosion in the billet between the ball alley and hospital killed one man. The exposion in the Orderly Office stunned three of the guard in the guard-room. One soldier and one irregular were shot dead at the main gate. The force of the explosions knocked out the sentry at the transport sheds. This soldier recovered and was about to fire, when a machine gun was turned on him, and he was badly wounded. The remainder of the main guard waged a fight against the irregulars for over two hours, when they were obliged to yield. The irregulars who took part in the attack numbered, approximately, 300, and were reinforced later by 240 prisoners released from the jail.

"About 6.30 a.m., when the military barrack was in the hands of the irregulars, Commandant McConnell, who had himself been blown through a window, requested Mr. F. Aiken, the irregular leader, to allow his men to rescue the dead and wounded, several of whom were buried or partially pinned under the débris. The irregular leader refused this permission unless the troops in the jail and Ann street garrisons were ordered to surrender. In order to get the wounded speedily attended to, Commandant McConnell was obliged to agree to this proposal, and six soldiers were then allowed by the irregulars to search for their wounded comrades. Some of the irregular prisoners released from the jail manned a Lancia car and drove to the military barracks. Here they exploded a mine outside the main gate and killed one of their leaders named McKenna.

"The troops' casualties were three killed, one mortally injured, and 15 wounded. The irregulars had two killed and 30 wounded.

"All the mines exploded within the military barrack had been placed in position by the irregulars during their previous occupation of the building. Several of the troops wounded by the irregulars' mine explosions were badly treated during their captivity. One soldier, who received severe wounds in the legs, was forced to walk a distance with a rifle thrust into his mouth.

"On Tuesday morning the leader of the irregulars called on the troops and offered to release them if they signed an undertaking to leave the national Army. The men without exception refused, showing their resentment at the proposal by boohing the irregular leader out of the jail. The same evening the irregular leader addressed a meeting in the Square of the town, in which he called for a truce. He was boohed by the crowd, and cheers were given for the national leaders, in which the soldiers held in the jail joined. The meeting broke up. Several business houses in the town were looted by irregulars on Tuesday night—stores of petrol being seized.

"In the round-up operations of the troops around Dundalk on Monday and Tuesday over 80 irregulars were made prisoners together with a large quantity of arms, ammunition, grenades, and one mine. The town was reoccupied by the troops on Wednesday, and members of the forces held by the irregulars set at liberty. The jail and the railway station is now occupied by the troops, the irregulars being forced to retreat towards Greenore and Omeath. Some of the streets were mined by the irregulars. A petrol lorry passing over the Square in the town was blown up by one of those mines, and one civilian killed. Troops advancing on the scene in a Lancia car opened fire on irregulars running away, two of whom were killed. One civilian was wounded by the fire."

PREPARING TO QUIT.

MINE EXPLODED IN A STREET.

Our Dundalk Correspondent, telegraphing yesterday, says that the town was taken almost without any fighting. The Northern irregulars who had occupied the military barracks evacuated it early in the evening, leaving a small detachment behind to reinforce and direct the local irregulars, of whom some hundreds had been mobilised. These men proceeded to make preparations for defence. They sandbagged the Town Hall and other buildings, and snipers were posted on the tops of high buildings, including the old Monastery Tower in Seatown. A mine was laid at the southern end of the principal business thoroughfare, and on top of it was placed a lorry loaded with petrol tins.

The first of the troops arrived from the direction of Ardee at about 9 o'clock. Irregular pickets, who had been posted with machine guns on the roads leading to the town from the South, were withdrawn early in the evening. These were stated to have laid mines under the Fane Bridge, on the Dublin road, but, if so, they were lifted and carried off by the retreating pickets, some hours before the national troops arrived by that route. The troops on their arrival took over the jail, which is on high ground, at the South end of the town. The irregulars had evacuated the buildings, leaving the keys on the doorstep, and the troops speedily had the doors opened, and released their comrades, who had been confined there since Monday.

At about this time, and before the troops had come within half-a-mile of it, the irregulars who had charge of the street mine fired it. It blew up with a deafening explosion, wrecking all the shops around. Every bit of glass was blown out, and most of the windows frames, and business is impossible at present in this area. Some time before this armed irregulars paraded the town, ordering all the citizens indoors, and where the order was not instantly complied with they fired shots in the air. The street lamps had been lighted as usual, but shortly afterwards the current was cut from all except those through which the troops were expected to pass. The rest of the town was in utter darkness. Heavy rain had commenced to fall, and the townspeople, shut into their houses, were alarmed by frequent bursts of fire.

The troops decided to remain in the vicinity of the jail during the night, and the town settled down to uneasy slumber. When morning broke there was no sign anywhere of the irregulars. The strangers from the North had left the town; the locals had given up the idea of resistance. There was no one in the sandbagged Town Hall; there was not a shot to disturb the silence. At the time of writing the troops are commencing a systematic search of the town. They have already found a Crosley car, with rifles and ammunition, in a yard in the upper end. The militant section of the irregulars is believed to have retired to the hill between the town and Newry. They are also reported to have taken possession of the Greenore Hotel, and to be in strong force in the Cooley Peninsula.

It was learned this morning that a man named John Toal, a well-known irregular, had been shot, and it is reported that he is dead. A young man named McEvoy, living at Kilcurry, a worker in the distillery, is dead. It is reported that he was on his way home from work when the mine was exploded and that he was struck by a fragment. Mr. Connolly, a well-known and popular veterinary surgeon, was standing near his premises in Market square during the evening when he was struck, it is believed, by a stray bullet and seriously wounded. He was operated on this morning at the Louth Infirmary, and his condition is very grave. A soldier named Duffy, of Ballybay, who was wounded in the fight on Monday morning, died in the infirmary this morning.

About 9 o'clock last night armed men entered the Post Office, and proceeded to smash all the telegraph instruments. Direct communication from Dundalk is impossible, and this message is sent from an outlying telegraph office. It is reported that another irregular, who is supposed to be from Armagh, was shot at the same time as Toal. A man was brought to Louth Infirmary to-day with a bullet through the lung, supposed to be the result of a revolver accident. It is reported that three members of an ambush party were shot last night on the Knockbridge road. Firing has been heard from the Walterstown direction, and troops fired on men who were found in Dundalk demesne.

It is stated that troops landed during the night north of Dundalk, and that a combined drive through the mountains will be instituted as soon as Dundalk has been cleared up.

A VISIT TO DUNDALK.

TROOPS WELCOMED BY THE PEOPLE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

DROGHEDA, Thursday Night.

Last night, owing to the lack of telegraphic communication north of Drogheda, I was obliged to return by a circuitous route from some miles beyond Dunleer, whither I had gone with one of the columns converging on Dundalk. Heavy rain fell during the night, and the rapid advance of the national forces was hampered by a thick mist which fell like a veil over the country just at nightfall. Scouting parties were thrown out under cover of the hedgerows along the roads, and right across the fields of yellow corn and other crops, as well as luxuriant pastures. In the apparent absence of accurate information as to the disposition of the irregulars, the commandant of the column which I accompanied moved with considerable caution. It was, therefore, late in the night when the main column reached the outskirts of Dundalk, and it was deemed advisable not to go any farther until daybreak. Having put the column into a state of defence against surprise, developments were awaited.

Early this morning I followed up the line of advance. I discovered that not only my particular column, but that all the troops, had entered Dundalk without material opposition. The column whose fortunes I had been following had only advanced into the disputed territory about half an hour before me, and as they went towards the centre of the town they had no occasion to ask for creature comforts. Gifts of cigarettes and other things which appeal to the heart of every campaigner were showered upon them. The populace showed every disposition to help the Army, and the troops were glad to reach their destination.

The operations generally were under Commandant-General Hogan, and overnight the column under Colonel-Commandant MacNeill quietly approached and took possession of the jail, where many of the previous national garrison had been placed in confinement by the irregulars when the town was captured on Monday morning. Previous to the advent of the troops an aeroplane, flying at a low altitude, appeared on the scene, and some of the irregulars in Ann street Barracks opened fire. This attack was answered by the aeroplane. Almost immediately a whistle was blown and the irregulars cleared out helter-skelter, four of them leaving their rifles behind. The irregular sentries at the jail fled precipitately, leaving the keys of the prison on the premises and making the prisoners masters of the situation.

THE LIBERATION.

Close on six o'clock the troops entered the jail and liberated their comrades. In the interval between the departure of the irregulars and the arrival of the first relief column, the jail gates were left open, and numbers of people ran in, some to try and see their friends. Not a shot was fired in opposition to the troops that entered the town last night, but at the junction of Park street, Earl street, and Francis street, an empty petrol lorry was placed over a road mine. A Lancia car with field gun attached was moving in this locality, and machine gun fire was opened on it by irregulars. There were no national casualties, but Mr. T. A. Connelly, V.S., who was in the neighbourhood, was wounded.

Meanwhile the Rev. Father McKeon, Administrator, and the Rev. Father Tohill, C.C., had been making every effort to prevent the explosion of the mine in the street, but the irregulars would not listen to them, and thinking that the Lancia car and big gun were near the decoy lorry, the mine was exploded at nine o'clock at night. A man named McEvoy was killed as a result, and the lorry immediately crumpled up, although the engine is very little injured. Every window within a wide radius was shivered to atoms. At one house in the immediate neighbourhood the slates of the roof were lifted. At another the plaster coping over a shop front was separated from the wall. The roadway was littered with glass. Shop windows had to be shuttered, and where this mode of protection was not available, wire netting was utilised.

When the third column entered the town not a trace of the irregulars could be found. The irregulars are now believed to have retreated to various centres in the country round about Dundalk, including the Carlingford Mountains. There are several mines in the military barracks, and no one is allowed to enter it for the present.

Greenore is stated to have been evacuated last night.

A tour of the neighbourhood of Dundalk today failed to reveal the presence of any hostile force, but roving bands are, nevertheless, understood to be in existence. These may possibly be a source of trouble.

AN OFFICER'S STORY.

One of the national officers, who had been imprisoned in the jail, relating his experience before and after his capture, stated that the irregulars landed by motor boat from Omeath at the back of the barracks at Point road. Unknown to the national forces, mines had been laid prior to the time they took the premises over, and connections with these had been brought outside the walls. Knowing this, the irregulars were able to apply the electric current, and in three seconds the officers' quarters, the hospital, and portion of the walls were blown up. Volunteer Donnelly, a sentry beside the gate, which was blown down, was killed by the force of the explosion. The other guards turned out and fired at the attackers, putting up a good fight, but hand grenades were thrown at them and the gate was rushed.

FUNERAL OF LORD NORTHCLIFFE.

SERVICE AT THE ABBEY

GREAT PRESS TRIBUTE.

After a Service in Westminster Abbey at noon the remains of Lord Northcliffe were interred yesterday at St. Mary-le-Bone Cemetery, Finchley.

When the doors were thrown open three-quarters of an hour before the time fixed for the Service, the Abbey was quickly filled. It was markedly a great assembly of journalists. Men of mark in the newspaper world were present by the score.

At Salisbury square, earlier in the day, a number of journalists had assembled, and walked to the Abbey, taking places with the general public, when the doors were opened, in the nave.

The funeral procession started from Carlton Gardens, the late Viscount's London residence, at about a quarter to 12, and shortly after midday struck the sweet notes of boys' voices were heard at the Great Western door.

Slowly they passed towards the Altar, led by the raised cross, and as they came the men's voices mingled in the Old Testament assurance—"I know that my Redeemer liveth—in my flesh shall I see God."

Yet again, as the full procession of clergy, the coffin, and the mourners passed through the nave did the choir chant, this time the words of St. Paul to Timothy—"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out."

Under the lantern the bearers came to rest, and the lighted tapers shone down on the beautiful cream silken pall, emblazoned with the Viscount's arms in gold and blue and red.

On the right of the coffin sat a bowed figure in black, with long veil concealing her face. It was Lady Northcliffe. With her was Lord Northcliffe's brother, Lord Rothermere, and near by were other brothers—Mr. Cecil B. Harmsworth, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs; Sir Leicester Harmsworth, and Sir Hildebrand Harmsworth, while a very big contingents of nephews and other relatives occupied the principal seats.

THE SERVICE.

The Service was conducted very simply (with the public joining in the hymns) by the Sub-Dean, assisted by a Precentor and three Minor Canons.

Before the Blessing was pronounced by the Sub-Dean at the altar, his hand upraised, his velvet and gold robe drooping in massive folds, the congregation sang the old hymn—"O God, our help in ages past."

This furnished an emotional period, but the climax came when, having stood motionless as Mr. S. H. Nicholson played the Dead March in "Saul," the procession moved slowly out to the haunting strains of Chopin's "Marche Funèbre," with its reiterated melancholies.

Outside the crowds still remained, silent, watching as the cortège left by way of Victoria street, via Hyde Park corner and the Marble Arch, to St. Mary-le-Bone Cemetery for the interment.

The chief mourners included:—Viscountess Northcliffe, Viscount Rothermere, the Hon. Esmond Harmsworth, M.P., and Mrs. Esmond Harmsworth; Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, M.P., and Mrs. Cecil Harmsworth; Sir Leicester Harmsworth, Bart., M.P., and Lady Harmsworth; Captain Alfred Harmsworth, Mr. Harold Harmsworth, Sir Hildebrand and Lady Harmsworth.

Among diplomatic representatives attending were the French and American Ambassadors. Brigadier-General Trotter represented the Prince of Wales, Sir Edward Grigg represented Mr. Lloyd George, and Mr. J. E. Stephenson attended on behalf of Mr. Winston Churchill.

For the Colonies and Dominions, the High Commissioners or other prominent representatives attended, and Sir John Knill was present as Acting Lord Mayor of London.

There was a big attendance of people prominent in the newspaper world, representing proprietorial, editorial, and commercial interests, and among other well-known people present were:—Kathleen Viscountess Falmouth, Lord Cowdray, Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, Lord and Lady Stuart of Wortley, Lord Headley, Lord Waring, the Bishop of Birmingham, Sir T. Vansittart Bowater, Sir Maurice de Bunsen, Mrs Rudyard Kipling, Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Sidney Low, Sir Robert McAlpine, Mr. A. E. W. Mason, Sir Lionel Phillips, Commander Sir Guy and Lady Standing, Sir John and Lady Stanley, Major-General Swinton, Sir Adolf Tuck.

THE INTERMENT.

Large crowds gathered to witness the interment. The grave is side by side with that in which Lord Northcliffe's grandmother, grandfather, and father are buried.

The Bishop of Birmingham conducted the Committal Service, and was assisted by the Rev. Prebendary P. H. Leary, Vicar of St. Augustine's, Kilburn, and the Rev. B. G. Bourchier, Vicar of St. Jude's, Hampstead.

A white cross, from Lady Northcliffe, was laid on the coffin.

FAR EAST TRIBUTES.

SHANGHAI, Thursday.

The Chinese vernacular newspapers pay a warm tribute to Lord Northcliffe. China, they all agree, has lost a great friend.

TOKYO, Thursday.

Lord Northcliffe's death was received with profound regret here. The Ashai eulogises the sincerity of his convictions. The Yorodzu says:—Japan has lost one of her truest friends and critics.—(Reuter.)

Fire was also opened on the irregulars by other members of the garrison, and the fight for possession lasted for about an hour.

The officer to whom I was speaking was blown out of his room, three storeys high, into the yard, but he suffered little injury, while six others were buried in the débris. Commandant Byrne, who died afterwards, was one of them, and asked for a drink of water, but would not be allowed to get it. Commandant Lynch, Captain McMahon, Staff Captain White, and Lieutenant McCaul also suffered injuries. Two other officers were slightly wounded.

The total national casualties were one officer and three privates dead and 15 wounded.

The leader of the irregulars admitted that, in consequence of the sturdy defence, his losses were greater. It is stated that he refused to allow the wounded to be attended until the guard in the jail surrendered and the prisoners there were released. When this had been done and Ann street Barracks had been captured, the garrison were locked up and deprived of their uniforms and equipment.

On the first day of their imprisonment the troops received stirabout at 12 noon and tea at 5 p.m. Next day they had breakfast, dinner, and tea, and on Wednesday they did not get breakfast until 11 a.m.

As a protest against their close confinement they broke the doors of their cells so that they could not be closed.

On Tuesday Mr. Aiken, the irregular leader, asked the prisoners to sign a paper declaring that they would not fight for the Free State Government. He was received with boohs and shouts of "Up, O'Duffy," "Up, Hogan," and "Up, Collins." Not one of the men would sign the paper submitted to them.

THE LAST OF THE R.I.C.

IRISH CIVIC GUARD "TAKES OVER."

DUBLIN CASTLE'S NEW MASTERS.

INFORMAL CEREMONY YESTERDAY.

What may be regarded as the final step in the transfer of Dublin Castle to the Irish Free State was quietly accomplished yesterday.

The last of the Royal Irish Constabulary—about a hundred men—passed out of the precincts almost unnoticed by the public, and a detachment of the new Civic Guard marched in and took up their quarters there and in Ship street Barracks.

Mr. Cope, Assistant Under Secretary, was the instrument of transfer. There was nothing in the shape of a formal ceremony in its execution. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning, Captain Stevens, of the King's Shropshire Light Infantry, took over Ship street Barracks from the Royal Irish Constabulary, and held the buildings until the arrival of the Civic Guard.

A few members of the King's Shropshire Regiment kept the guard at the Castle, and when the new police force came in the military marched out. A few members of the Royal Irish Constabulary, in mufti, mingled with a small crowd of people who were present to witness the proceedings. For an hour and a half they waited patiently in the Lower Castle Yard, evidently expecting that some function of a formal kind was to take place.

During this interval nothing more noteworthy occurred than the passing in and out of a few motor transport vehicles and private cars carrying the impedimenta of the disbanded policemen.

Many of the onlookers regarded the proceedings with a feeling of regret at the passing of what was admittedly the finest police force in the world.

Mr. Cope and Major Torin, King's Shropshire Light Infantry, awaited the arrival of the Civic Guards.

At half-past one o'clock the new force entered by the Lower Castle Yard gate, with Mr. M. Staines, Commissioner, and Chief Superintendent M'Carthy at their head. It numbered 380 men, only about 60 or 70 being in uniform, the others were in mufti, because of some mistake in the delivery of their uniforms.

About 300 men travelled by special train from Newbridge to the Kingsbridge Station, where they were met by a contingent from the city. The united body marched along the quays, and reached the Castle, via Westmoreland street, College Green, and Dame street. Shortly after they entered the Castle precincts the members of the force were conducted to the quarters which they are to occupy in Ship street Barracks and in the Castle. Guards were posted in the different departments.

The new police headquarters in the city are in Little Denmark street. Ship street Barracks will be used as a training centre for recruits. The headquarters for the rest of Ireland are at the Curragh.

Among the spectators of yesterday's proceedings were Chief Superintendent Murphy and Superintendent Campbell, Dublin Metropolitan Police. The Dublin Metropolitan Police will wear a new badge.

GREEK PRESUMPTION.

ALLIES' NOTE OF WARNING.

PARIS, Thursday.

An Athens telegram states that the Allied Legations there yesterday handed a collective Note to M. Baltazzis, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, in which the three Allied Governments inform the Greek Government that the proclamation of the autonomy of Smyrna tends to create a new political and administrative régime in Asia Minor, and that the three Allied Governments make express reservations on such a principle, and on the measures which might be taken in execution of it, seeing that the future régime of Asia Minor must be settled by a treaty of peace yet to be signed.—(Reuter.)

TURKEY'S NEED OF PEACE.

MARSEILLES, Thursday.

General Sir Charles Townshend arrived here to-day. Speaking to Reuter's Correspondent on the situation in Asia Minor, he said:—"What I have to tell is too serious and important not to reserve it for the British Government, and the French Government, too, as both have the same powerful interest in seeing peace restored out there. That peace is possible, quite possible, but to attain it France and England must walk hand in hand. Peace depends solely on a perfect agreement between France and England."—(Reuter.)

DESERT RAIDERS.

SWOOP INTO PALESTINE.

JERUSALEM, Thursday.

It is authoritatively reported that Wahabi Bedouins have attacked the Beni Sokhrs in the neighbourhood of Amman, and that British aeroplanes have delivered a counter blow, inflicting heavy loss on the Wahabis.—(Reuter.)

The Times Jerusalem Correspondent telegraphs:—A large raiding party from the direction of Transjordania came round the south of the Dead Sea and entered the Beersheba and Gaza district. The newly-formed British gendarmerie are now in pursuit, and have exchanged shots with the raiders.

SOLDIERS ATTACKED IN DUBLIN.

Shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday evening revolver shots were fired from St. Joseph's Parade, Drumcondra, at four national soldiers, who were driving towards Dublin in a Crossley tender. The soldiers did not return the fire. A subsequent search failed to find the attackers. No person was injured during the firing.

In a "round-up" by national troops on Wednesday, twelve men were taken prisoners in Ballycastle, Co. Mayo district, and nine in Lahardane.

At midnight on Wednesday four armed men entered the signal cabin at Enniscorthy Station and wrecked the telephone and signalling apparatus. The signal man was ordered away.

SOUTH AND WEST.

FOUR MORE TOWNS TAKEN.

BIG MARCONI STATION RESCUED.

The following official bulletin was issued from the Publicity Department, Field General Headquarters, South-Western Command, at 10.15 last night:—

"Troops under Brigadier O'Daly captured Rathmore to-day. Kanturk and Newmarket have also been occupied by the troops.

"The irregulars fled on the approach of the soldiers, who received a tremendous reception from the inhabitants of the newly-liberated towns.

"Clifden was captured by the troops on August 10. The irregulars fled to the Connemara hills on the approach of the troops, leaving the barracks intact. Five of the irregulars were captured with arms and ammunition, and one was killed. An ammunition dump was also discovered. There were no casualties amongst the troops.

"The Marconi Station is again working."

FIRST STAGE OVER.

CRUMBLING RESISTANCE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LIMERICK, Thursday.

With the fall of Mallow the war in its first stage may be considered to be over. True that in Macroom a few irregulars still are to be found who may confound expectations by making some resistance. Such resistance cannot be protracted, as with national forces at Cork, Mallow, Kanturk, Millstreet, Killarney, and Kenmare a combined operation is easy to arrange and execute. Thus the last town of any importance will in all probability be in national hands before a couple of days have passed.

The final collapse of the irregulars has been startling, and from a purely tactical point of view unnecessary. A fortnight ago the irregulars had sufficient men and munitions at their command to prolong the war for at least several months, yet during this period hardly a shot has been fired. The moral of the irregulars has been definitely low for some time, but not low enough in itself to account for everything, and we must look to a combination of causes to account for the details.

We know that the irregular forces were composed of several elements. There were, first of all, the intransigeant idealists, fiery in views, but not very numerous. There were, second, the more or less criminal rabble who prey upon diseased growths of the body politic, and who find fishing to be good in troubled waters. Third were the excitement-loving youths who are ready to join any body which will provide an outlet for their love of adventure; and, fourth, was a large body of harmless and not over-enterprising country lads who were drawn into the organisation like straws into a vortex, merely because they had not sufficient individuality to keep out of it. The fourth class would be the first to disappear. After numerous defeats they would see that continuance in the irregulars' ranks would finally bring only death or imprisonment, and would slink away as deserters, or take advantage of any express permission to return to their homes, and as this class was probably the most numerous it would compel the leaders of the irregulars to shorten their lines and abandon many of their posts without contesting them. Defeat, too, would tend to break the spirit of the other three classes, but the now open hostility of the people would have even greater effect in inducing the idealists and youthful adventurers to abandon the cause they had espoused.

THE FUTURE.

An Irishman can stand almost anything but unpopularity, and this breaks him. The idealists will probably form a Constitutional Republican Party; while the adventurers are likely, in the fullness of time, to join the national Army, and satisfy their cravings in other fields. But there remains still a rump of impossibilists and men of an anti-nomian and predatory type. These will attempt to carry on the war so long as any tract of country is unoccupied by national troops. They will split up into small bands of about forty to fifty men, well armed with the rifles and machine guns left by the defaulters, and, aided, no doubt, by motor transport, will cause a great deal of trouble. Even at the present moment there are portions of the country where such brigand bands have sway. No papers have arrived in Limerick for several days owing to their activities, railway lines and telegraph wires are continually cut, and sporadic shots are not uncommon. The office of the Limerick "War News" was raided this morning. The organisers of this warfare hope to be as successful against the national troops as they were against the British; but they neglect one cardinal fact—no guerrilla war can ever be effective unless it is whole-heartedly supported by the people of the country. It is only a question of time before proper garrisons in the towns and proper mobile columns on the roads render the existence of the guerrilla impossible. As soon as the occupation of the country is complete it will not take long to arrange a system which will make short work of the fugitive bands of irregulars which will still exist.

The last big act of vandalism—the destruction of the railway bridge at Mallow by Mr. Childers, aided by engineers from Krupps—is likely to cost the City of Cork something like a million pounds. It severs all land communications with Waterford, Limerick, Dublin, and, in short, the whole of Ireland, except the Counties of Cork and Kerry. Engineers estimate that it will take something like two months to repair, and during all this time business must stagnate. It is actions such as this which have inevitably sealed the doom of the irregulars by their total alienation of popular sympathy.

MONAGHAN OUTRAGE.

ROBBERY FROM TRAIN.

A party of armed men stopped a passenger train proceeding from Clones to Belfast, on the Great Northern Railway, yesterday morning, and abstracted about £100 belonging to the railway company. The outrage occurred near Monaghan, in Free State territory. The thieves made good their escape.

NOVA SCOTIA STRIKE UNREST.

SYDNEY (NOVA SCOTIA), Thursday.

Troops from Halifax reached the minefields yesterday evening, and after passing through a fusilade of brickbats and subduing minor disturbances, occupied No. 2 Colliery at Aberdeen. Two magistrates accompanied the troops and were prepared to read the Riot Act if there had been further disturbances.—(Reuter.)

The national troops have issued an order closing all licensed houses in Ballymote at 7.30 p.m.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

GERMAN MORATORIUM.

A WISE COURSE.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

Hesitation is characteristic of European policy at the present moment. No one wants to act precipitately. The Reparations Commission, for instance, would have been formally justified in taking a vote at its meeting yesterday on the question of the German moratorium. To have taken a direct vote might have meant a fresh revelation of the disagreement between the Allies that caused the breakdown of the London Conference. Clearly no good purpose would have been served by adopting a merely formal attitude, which would have been a dangerous confession of helplessness.

The situation is bad enough, without any mechanical decision to close the door on hope, and, therefore, we consider that the Reparations Commission took the part of wisdom yesterday when it agreed to compromise and to draft fresh terms as a possible guarantee for the moratorium which the German Government requests. The Allied Governments, by their failure either to produce a big plan or to agree on minor provisional measures, have put themselves in a serious dilemma. The Reparations Commission cannot rescue them from this dilemma, but it may at least keep some small outlet open. The very fact that it is seeking for a compromise and that it is establishing arguments for postponement is, at any rate, a hopeful sign.

It means, for one thing, that France is not determined to act separately, and that she is still disposed, in spite of the disappointing result of the London conversations, further to investigate, in conjunction with her Allies, the possibility of a rational solution of an extraordinarily difficult problem. Since force appears to be at least as helpless as reason in extracting from Germany in her present condition a just satisfaction of the claims of the Allies, it may be as well to test the remaining resources of reason.

The idea of making further discussions in Europe dependent on the result of the funding negotiations in Washington, and the issue of the American elections, is misleading and vain. To such a pass of timorous inaction have we been reduced by the Balfour Note. Still it is something to have a slight breathing space. The Reparation Commission has done well not to shut and bolt the door.

VACANT THRONE OF TSARS.

GRAND DUKE CYRIL'S CLAIM.

The Times Paris Correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—The Grand Duke Cyril, who is spending the summer with his family at St. Briac, on the Breton coast, has declared himself the guardian of the vacant throne of the Tsars. This is to be followed up immediately by a manifesto to the army and the people.

"By this declaration," he has told the Figaro, "I feel I am obeying the aspirations of the Russian people. If order is to be restored in our country a reconstructive action must be exercised of which I, in virtue of my lawful rights, am designed to be the chief. It is my intention to have these rights confirmed by the States General should it prove to be a fact that the Emperor Nicholas II. and his heirs are dead. I do not contemplate military action. I am thinking of the moral forces which are represented in Russia and abroad by all those who do not belong to Bolshevism.

"In a few days," he added, "the people and the army will receive a manifesto by which they will learn that I am animated by the most liberal spirit of clemency, and that our party, ignoring the political decisions of the past, only seeks the re-establishment of legality and order."

MINISTERIAL CHANGES.

According to the Parliamentary Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, some Ministerial changes are certain to take place before Parliament reassembles in the autumn. There were hints during the latter part of July of a coming Cabinet reshuffle, but inquiry revealed that though there had been a preliminary discussion on the subject between the heads of the Government, the present distribution of posts was to be allowed to remain undisturbed for a time. It is now stated that Mr. Shortt will be leaving the Home Office about the end of September, and as it is confidently expected that a vacancy will occur in the King's Bench Division before the end of the long vacation, no surprise will be occasioned if in due course it is announced that he has been made a judge.

MR. ROBERT MUNRO.

It is now understood to be fairly certain, says the Edinburgh Correspondent of the Westminster Gazette, that the new Lord Justice Clerk of Scotland will be Mr. Robert Munro, the Secretary for Scotland, but the official announcement may not be made until near the end of the Long Vacation.

REVENGE OF THE MIDDLE CLASSES.

Commenting on the quarterly vital statistics, issued this week, the Morning Post remarks:—Are the middle classes going to take a sure revenge on all their tyrants and traducers by disappearing altogether? That is the melancholy possibility to which certain figures furnished by the Registrar-General have drawn public attention. Those figures reveal a most serious disproportion between the birth-rates of the thrifty and non-thrifty classes. Somerset House figures prove that the birth-rate among professional workers is less than half that of manual workers. Those conclusions, we are informed, will probably be reinforced by an addition to the last census figures now being prepared, which will deal with the fertility of all classes and their occupation. Here, then, is a sad state of affairs, which recalls those sombre signs which heralded the decline and fall of the Roman Empire. The Registrar-General is warning us. The source of our wealth, the mainstay of our satirists, the relics of the Victorian age are beginning at last to go. Unless, of course, the present system of government is changed, the middle classes are bound to go. The Registrar-General is only underlining an obvious truth.

ALLIED AGREEMENT PROSPECT.

The Daily Mail's Paris Correspondent states that new efforts are being made there to settle the reparation deadlock in such a way as to make it unnecessary for France to take independent action against Germany. The outlook is more hopeful.

SEEKING A BASIS OF COMPROMISE.

ALLIED EXPERTS IN CONFERENCE.

BELGIAN DELEGATE'S SCHEME.

The members of the Reparations Commission met in Paris yesterday to discuss the possibility of reaching a settlement on the moratorium question, which, while safeguarding the interests of France, will be acceptable to the other Governments. The sitting was not official, however, and no report of the proceedings was issued.

A report is current in Brussels that M. Delacroix will be instructed to urge at a formal meeting of the Commission the suggestion put forward by M. Theunis in London to the effect that Germany's payments should be deferred till the November Conference, while Germany, in the meantime, should make promises which could be guaranteed by commercial signatures.

DECISION IN ABEYANCE.

SIR J. BRADBURY'S POSITION.

PARIS, Thursday.

Although the Reparation Commission has not yet met officially to draw up its reply to Germany regarding a moratorium, the various members have been discussing amongst themselves the bases of a compromise that will satisfy France and Germany's other creditors.

Sir John Bradbury, the British Reparations delegate, informed Reuter's correspondent today that he intimated to the British Government some time ago his desire to retire from the Commission as soon as he could be conveniently replaced, but that the Government replied that it thought that an immediate change was undesirable.

He accordingly agreed to continue until November 30, or possibly longer. So far, he saw nothing likely to happen in the near future necessarily affecting those plans. No member of the Commission, Sir John added, was responsible to anyone but the Government appointing him, and so long, therefore as he was fortunate enough to retain the confidence of His Majesty's Government, differences of opinion with his colleagues—should such, unhappily arise, and he trusted that they might not—would not in themselves be any reason for his resignation.—(Reuter.)

FALLING VALUES.

DIFFICULTIES IN BERLIN AND VIENNA.

It is semi-officially announced in Berlin that as a result of the depreciation of the mark the railway administration will increase the present goods traffic by 50 per cent., as from September 1.

The Vienna newspapers, referring to the London Conference, generally give Mr. Lloyd George full credit for having done his very utmost to secure harmonious agreement.

Exchange rates on the Bourse there rose sharply yesterday, the £ going to 280,200 crowns, the dollar to 62,700, the Swiss franc to 11,940, and the Czech crown to 1,850, representing an increase of over 20 per cent. since the beginning of August.—(Reuter.)

RAILWAY DESTRUCTION.

KILLARNEY HOTEL BURNED.

Further information as regards the Great Southern and Western Railway is to the effect that the Kildare and Kilkenny section was interfered with on Wednesday night by the blowing up of a bridge between Bagenalstown and Milford station, causing an interruption to the services on that section.

Again it is reported that the Limerick and Tuam section has been interfered with by the blowing up of two bridges on the section between Gort and Ardrahan. The company are maintaining the service from Limerick to Gort and return, and owing to further line damaging on the section between Tuam and Athenry no train service is possible between Tuam and Gort.

The company's repair gang, while working between Tuam and Claremorris, was fired upon, and forced to give up the repairs.

At Emly station the signal cabin was burned down on Wednesday evening, as well as causing some damage to the line.

At Killarney the company's magnificent new hotel was set on fire and burned to the ground. The old hotel was unharmed. The train service is still suspended in the Kerry district, as the line is broken between Farranfore and Tralee, and in several places on the branch between Farranfore and Valencia Harbour. Two bridges between Headfort Junction and Rathmore have been destroyed by fire. A bridge at Loo Bridge has been destroyed by fire. The section between Killarney and Ballybrack is also interrupted owing to the derailment of an engine at that place.

There is no service in or out of Cork. Bridges at Fota, in the County Cork, have been destroyed by fire. The bridge on the Killeagh and Youghal section has been destroyed. Rails and sleepers have been torn up at Mogeely station. The viaduct at Cappoquin, on the Cappoquin and Lismore section, having been interfered with, is unsafe for passing trains. A large number of consignments of food-stuffs were raided from trains and station premises at Banteer and Farranfore stations, respectively.

Further advices to hand state that all the instruments in the telegraph office and in the north and south signal cabins at Mallow were dismantled on Wednesday night, and, owing to the damaging of a bridge on the section between Mallow and Castletownroche, no train service of any description is possible on the Waterford and Mallow branch. Telegraphic and telephonic communication with Mallow is also interrupted from Cork and Dublin.

TRAIN DERAILED.

GOODS STOLEN BY WRECKERS.

A goods train from Dublin to Westport was stopped by armed men at Kiltoom, near Athlone, on Wednesday night. They forced open wagons containing bacon, flour, tobacco, and other provisions, large quantities of which they carried to a motor boat and rowing boats on the shores of Lough Ree, three-quarters of a mile away. When the goods were conveyed to the shore, another party of armed men lifted portion of the line 100 yards from the station, and the engine was unhooked from the wagons and sent at full speed towards Knockcroghery. When it reached the point at which the rails were lifted, it tore through sleepers and came to a standstill, blocking the line. The parties then boarded a motor boat, and took in tow a number of row boats filled with the stolen provisions, and went across the lake.

A breakdown gang was sent to the damaged line to repair it. National troops are scouring the district for the raiders.

CAPTURES IN WESTMEATH.

National troops effected a coup in the early hours of yesterday morning, at Glenedan, 10 miles from Mullingar. Apparently soldiers on patrol, under Commandant Joseph Reilly, found in a cottage 200 rounds of rifle ammunition, 100 rounds of revolver ammunition, gelignite, five rifles, seven bombs and a quantity of other ammunition.

Seventeen irregulars, who had escaped from Dundalk, were also captured by troops operating in Delvin and Clonmellon. They also seized rifles, 150 rounds of ammunition, two Webley revolvers, 100 rounds of .45 ammunition, 11 bombs, and a quantity of detonators.

WRECKERS IN A PRINTING OFFICE.

Yesterday morning a gang of men entered a Limerick printing establishment where the "War News" is printed, "held up" the staff, and put them into a room. The raiders then smashed with hammers the type of the "War News," exclaiming: "This is the —— paper which is doing us all the harm." A young fellow in the office managed to escape and gave the alarm, when the raiders decamped. The "War News" appeared shortly afterwards.

THE TAKING OF CLIFDEN.

TROOPS IN MARCONI STATION.

Clifden is free of the irregulars. The Marconi Station, a few miles from the town, has been rescued. Strong national guards have been placed in the barracks and at the station. Mr. Matthias, the chief engineer, declares that the wireless may be working again very soon, and communication through Ireland with the outside world restored.

The expedition which freed Clifden was under the control of Colonel-Commandant Brennan, Galway, and after many adventurous attempts and two failures, owing to troubles with motor engines, it landed in two columns on points converging on the town. The columns arrived at dawn on Tuesday; and after a running fight of thirty-five minutes, during which rifles and machine guns were used, the irregulars fled to the Twelve Pins, leaving four prisoners in the hands of the troops. They left behind all their stores and an ammunition dump, and did not wait to explode the mines which had been laid there. The bridges approaching the town were also mined, but none of the mines were exploded, the outposts apparently having been taken by complete surprise.

The people of Clifden were first apprised of the relief of the town when the firing began shortly after 6 o'clock on Tuesday morning. For twenty minutes there were fierce and sustained outbursts of rifle and machine gun fire, and then it trailed off into sniping from the hills. Before 7 o'clock the main body of the troops had arrived in the centre of the town; the barracks was in their hands; and the townspeople turned out to make them breakfast and bid them welcome.

A little later at Mass, which the troops attended, Monsignor M'Alpine publicly bade them welcome on the part of a long-suffering people.

Colonel-Commandant Brennan afterwards proceeded to the Marconi Station, where Mr. Matthias, the chief engineer, and the staff were interviewed, and a strong guard was placed there. The troops did not suffer any casualties.

A DEADLY AMBUSH.

THREE SOLDIERS KILLED.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

CLONMEL, Wednesday Night.

An ambush of national troops took place today at Woodroofe demesne, four or five miles from Clonmel. Three of the troops were killed and nine were wounded, many of them seriously. Of the dead, two would seem to have had their heads almost blown away by machine gun fire, and death in the three cases must have been instantaneous. The attack was totally unexpected, and before the men were able to gain cover most of the casualties had been inflicted.

The party numbered about fifty, and comprised "C" Company of Commandant-General Prout's column in Clonmel. Shortly before 12 o'clock the company paraded opposite the headquarters of the troops, Hearn's Hotel. They then boarded three lorries and, under the command of Captain Mullally, set out for Cahir, which was occupied by another detachment of troops, whom I accompanied there on Monday evening. On arriving at Woodroofe demesne, about four miles out of Clonmel, the men dismounted from the lorries and went on foot through the demesne. This detour was necessary to avoid a portion of the main road on which a bridge had been blown up. Precautions were taken to guard against a surprise attack as the men proceeded along the avenue which leads on to the main road, which is about a mile further on from the main entrance. Not a shot was fired as they walked along the drive, and eventually the party came out on the road, with the lorries immediately behind, the gates having been closed behind them.

Some of the men got into the first lorry and others climbed into the second one. Then, without warning, the storm burst. Lewis and Thompson guns and Mauser rifles rattled simultaneously, and bullets literally rained all over the road. The firing came from the direction of a barn and some outposts away on the top of a hill which slopes up from the left of the road. Some confusion naturally followed. The men who had climbed into the lorries leapt to the ground, and under a merciless fire dashed for cover to the stone wall which runs along the left-hand side of the road. The scene can be more easily imagined than described.

As the soldiers rushed towards the wall through a shower of bullets several of them fell wounded, three of them mortally. These were Volunteer Cornelius Roche, Cahir; Volunteer Bergin, Castlecomer, Co. Kilkenny; Corporal Fogarty, Templemore. Each of these men sustained terrible wounds. Volunteer Roche had his skull completely shattered, the top of Volunteer Bergin's head was almost blown away, and Corporal Fogarty was riddled through the lower part of the body. All were killed while rushing for cover.

The majority of the men had now succeeded in gaining the wall, and they replied as effectively as was possible from their exposed position to the irregulars' fire. Meanwhile, the wounded lay about the road, and one of their comrades afterwards told me that their moans affected him far more than the firing. Lieutenant Doherty, who was one of the wounded, told some of the men who went to his assistance not to mind him. "Carry on, boys," he exclaimed. He had only been promoted to the rank of lieutenant that day. The firing continued for about twenty minutes. Two flanking parties were thrown out, and made their way under heavy fire towards the irregulars' position. Perceiving the movement, the irregulars retreated.

Reinforcements immediately afterwards arrived from Clonmel, and it was found that the irregulars had been in the outhouses of a farm on the hill from which the attack was made. The irregulars compelled the occupants of the house to remain indoors while the attack was being made. During the attack some of the irregulars shouted at the troops three times to surrender. Before leaving Clonmel General Absolution had been administered to the company by Father Coffey.

The names of the wounded are:—Lieutenant Doherty, Private Macdevitt, Volunteer Thomas Dowling, Kilkenny; Private Meagher, Mullinahone; Private Daniel McCarthy, Cashel; Private John O'Dwyer, Stoneyford, Co. Kilkenny; Private L. O'Rourke, Kilkenny; Private William Smith, Clonmel; Private James Hutton, Kilsheelan.

When journeying to Thurles with this message through Fethard, Killenaule, and Holycross I saw no sign of irregular activity.

MURDERER EXECUTED.

SHOCKING BELFAST CRIME.

Simon M'Keown, 38, ex-soldier, who served in India, where he suffered from sunstroke and malaria, and who during the Great War was gassed twice, and wounded three times, was executed at Belfast Prison yesterday morning for the murder of Maggie Fullerton, an eight years old child.

She was decoyed from her playmates in York street district to a plantation at Lord Shaftesbury's demesne, Belfast Castle, where her mutilated body was discovered underneath a heap of leaves.

At the trial Lord Justice Andrews characterised the murder as one of the most brutal in the annals of crime.

The condemned man left no statement behind him regarding the crime. He rose early after a good night's sleep, and partook of a hearty breakfast. He walked firmly to the scaffold, and met his death bravely.

A crowd assembled outside the jail, and the first intimation they had that the law had taken its course was the posting up of notices on the front of the prison gate.

Ellis was the executioner.

At the inquest on M'Keown the prison doctor stated that death had been instantaneous. The usual verdict was returned.

PTOMAINE POISONING.

FIVE PERSONS DEAD.

A serious case of supposed ptomaine poisoning is reported from Lochmae, 40 miles from Dingwall.

A party of anglers, visiting the neighbourhood, partook of some tinned paste sandwiches for lunch on Monday, and on Tuesday they were taken ill.

A local doctor and other medical aid were called in, but the cases were serious and five deaths have, so far, occurred, while one other person remains in a critical condition.

The party was eight in number, comprising Mr. John B. Talbot, a young man of 22, from Kent, who had just completed a brilliant course at Oxford; Mr. E. G. Williams, an elderly visitor from London, and his valet; Mrs. Dickson, address not given; Mr. Anderson, of Exeter; Mrs. Anderson, and their ghillie; and Mr. Stewart, of Glasgow.

Of those mentioned, only Mr. Anderson and Mr. Williams's valet, did not partake of the luncheon, but all the others were subsequently seized with illness, and fatal results have supervened in the cases of Mr. Talbot, Mr. Williams, Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. Anderson, and Mr. Stewart. Mr. Anderson's ghillie still survives, but is in a serious condition. The County police authorities are investigating the affair. Mr. Anderson, whose wife is one of the victims, served as Captain and Adjutant with the Seaforth Highlanders during the war.

Mr. James Cowie, for twenty years traffic manager and secretary of the Irish section of the Midland Railway, has retired, and will be succeeded by Mr. Pepper, assistant goods manager at Derby.

BURNED MANSIONS.

TWO MORE DESTROYED.

At an early hour yesterday morning news reached Longford that Currygrane House, the residence of Mr. James Mackay Wilson, D.L., had been maliciously set on fire and burned to the ground. Mr. Wilson (who is a brother of the late Sir Henry Wilson) and his wife have been absent from home for some time. The damage is estimated at several thousands.

Yesterday morning irregulars burned down Geashill Castle, a massive structure, with a long and interesting history, the seat of Lord Digby, near Tullamore. The Digby family have not been in residence there for some time. The housekeeper was ordered out by the irregulars, and all communication was cut off to prevent the possibility of any attempts to save the building.

BURNED AND LOOTED.

In the history of looting there has been nothing more scandalous than that which has taken place at Brookfield House, Tullamore, which was recently burned by the irregulars. Everything that could be seized in the ruined building, which was a very fine well-furnished residence, is being taken. The garden at the rear of the premises has come in for particular attention. It was one of the noted fruit and flower gardens in the Midlands. Rare plants have been torn from their roots and carried away, so have gooseberry bushes, fruit trees, and the well-kept beds have been destroyed. The looters have spared nothing, and the place has been completely devastated. Mr. Browne, whose residence it has been, spent years in beautifying and improving the place, and immense sums of money were expended on the house and its surroundings.

YOUNG OFFICER'S FUNERAL.

Amid impressive scenes, the funeral of the late Lieutenant-Commandant Edward O'Brien, who was shot on Tuesday night, took place yesterday from St. John's Church, Waterford, to St. Mary's, Ballygunner. High Mass, at which the Most Rev. Dr. Hackett, Bishop of Waterford and Lismore, presided, was celebrated in the presence of a large congregation. The streets through which the cortège passed were lined with citizens.

AFLOAT ON THE LUIMNEACH.

WITH THE DUBLIN GUARDS TO CORK.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

MONDAY—On board the ss. Luimneach.

I tried to get by motor to Cork from Limerick, but motor cars are precious and profitable in the area of the South-Western Command, and the road to Cork is rough and dangerous. The Shannon is smooth and seductive, and so, by the courtesy of Generals Murphy and McManus, I find myself on the Limerick Steamship Company's good ship Luimneach, in charge of Captain Hanrahan, who modestly wears his decorations for gallant war service in the mercantile marine. Like its captain, the vessel is a Limerick product. But it has another claim to fame. It was the first vessel to be registered under the Free State Government, and thereby hangs a tale. Recently, when she arrived in the Mersey on one of her weekly trips to Liverpool, she was hailed in the usual nautical manner, and asked where she came from. "From the Colonies," the captain answered. "What Colony?" questioned a stentorian voice. "Ireland," replied the captain, with a sly smile. Perturbation ashore. "What's her name?" was the next query, and the answer, "Luimneach," went back in approved Munster Gaelic. "Spell it," said an angry voice, and having courteously complied, the captain was permitted to berth. Thus was the freedom of the Free State asserted.

To ensure a safe and comfortable voyage to Cork of a convoy of national troops, it was decided by Commander McAvoy, the Lord High Admiral of the national "Navy," to intercept the Luimneach as she arrived in the Shannon this morning with thirteen hundred tons of general cargo from Liverpool. As the port clock was chiming midday, we left behind us the old grey city by the Shannon shore, and steamed down the river on the lighter "Garryowen," a smart craft which recently distinguished itself in the landings at Fenit, Tarbert, and Kenmare. There followed in our wake two other lighters, containing the rest of the convoy. The river shimmered in the summer sun, and the hills of Clare were radiant. It was not long when we sighted the graceful outline of the Luimneach, dutifully standing to in mid-channel. Word had been conveyed early in the morning to Captain Hanrahan that he was again required for war service, and again he answered readily to his country's call.

We quickly transhipped to his vessel, and then the Garryowen steamed off to Kilrush to pick up a further detachment of troops. Our deck cargo, as we remained at anchor awaiting her return, was transferred to the lighters. Part of it consisted of several boxes of American bacon, familiarly known as "The Lad." Truly the Luimneach was bringing coals to Newcastle. The transfer proved a slow process, and it had just been finished when the Garryowen again came alongside. The Kilrush troops joined their comrades from Clare and Tipperary, along with a detachment of the Dublin Guards, which proved to be the life and soul of the convoy. Soon the anchor is weighed, and we are off again, with a golden sunset emblazoning our prow. The sleepy woodlands of Foynes and Glin bid us bon voyage, and darkness is gathering as Loop Head looms ahead. As we approach the Atlantic, the wind freshens, and the sea becomes choppy. The troops, healthy country lads most of them, are beginning to lose their exuberance, and their cheeks grow pale. It is time to turn in.

DOWN THE KERRY COAST.

Tuesday Morning, off Mizen Head.

We had a rough passage down the Kerry coast as we came through the Blasket Sound, passed Dingle Bay, and swept inside the Skelligs. The silence of the troops spoke volumes. Even the Dublin Guards could not raise a chorus. Now, however, the sun is smiling, and all is gaiety aboard. We are having a glorious view of the jagged coast-line of South-West Cork, and the sea is as calm as the Shannon itself. We have passed Glandore and Union Hall, whose sheltering bays last week welcomed the relief parties on their march to Cork. Galley Head, the Old Head of Kinsale, and Daunt's Rock lightship greet us as we steam past, and now we are rounding northwards towards Roche's Point and those grim old sentinels, Forts Camden and Carlisle. We expect to reach Queenstown about six o'clock; but we do not know if we are to sail up the Lee. Everybody is now anxious to get ashore, as it is already getting chilly, and we want to stretch our legs, for the Luimneach is not a passenger ship, and there is not a square foot vacant on the decks. Having picked up the pilot, we head for Queenstown, and soon we see the Cove of Cork resplendent in the sunlight. As we steam slowly towards Deep Water quay our identity is disclosed, and from every window flags and handkerchiefs are frantically waved. We pick our steps in the fairway amongst British destroyers, silent sleuth hounds watching our passing with a quizzical air. The shore is lined with spectators waving us a cordial welcome. We are still uncertain whether our destination is Queenstown or Cork. To solve the riddle Commandant Small goes ashore to see the local command, and we drop anchor opposite Haulbowline, which looks like a deserted village.

We have time to look around, and we pick out the charred outlines of Admiralty House, the Naval Hospital, and the hutments on the brow of the hill—grim souvenirs of the irregular occupation. The familiar signal tower has completely disappeared, but the graceful Gothic spire of the Cathedral remains as a landmark for anxious visitors. While we await the word of command from the Queen's Hotel, the local headquarters of the troops, the Angelus chimes in solemn tones and the soldiers stand to attention bareheaded. It is an impressive sight. While the troops lustily sing "The Soldier's Song" a boat pushes off from shore, and Commandant Small orders us to proceed to Cork. We are warned against snipers, but the only snipers that we can detect as we proceed are the scarecrows in the cornfields. Monkstown and Carrigaloe are soon astern, and at Passage West the workmen line the docks to cheer us. Across the river we observe another memento of the gallantry of the irregulars in the twisted arches of the railway bridge leading from Fota, Lord Barrymore's picturesque seat, to Queenstown Junction. As we enter Loughmahon we get further proof of irregular thoroughness. Right in the channel our passage is menaced by a sunken dredger and the hull, partly submerged, of a steamer, appropriately named The Guerilla. We manage to squeeze through, and we pass Blackrock Castle and Tivoli, and skirt the verdant lawns of the Marina; while on our right the sylvan slopes of Montenotte give us a cordial welcome. The citizens line both banks of the silvery Lee, and cheer us as we pass through a thick mist to our berth on the Southern side of the Custom House quay. We are soon alongside, and Captain Hanrahan, having brought us safely over two hundred and fifty miles, deposits his precious cargo of troops quietly ashore. The troops line up, and march briskly to their quarters; while the gallant captain mobilises his crew, turns the Luimneach homewards, and we all wish him God-speed on his journey. The Luimneach had struck another blow for freedom of the Free State.

A CHANGED CORK.

As I passed up the quays the city seemed to have lost its wonted vitality. Soon I discovered that it has not yet recovered from its stupefaction. Though the irregular forces have long since disappeared, there is an apprehensive feeling prevalent among the citizens, as sniping is frequent at night. Business is almost stagnant, as the city is isolated, except for sea communication, and there is much congestion of traffic on the quays. The telegraph wires to Dublin are down at Mallow, where the irregulars have badly smashed them and the instruments in the local Post Office. Through the courtesy of Captain Semple, of Messrs. Guinness's steamer Clareisland, which is now sailing for the Liffey, I am enabled to get this despatch away.

HORSE SHOW WEEK DANCES.

The dances organised by Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne for Horse Show week are proving a big attraction. Both the Cinderellas and "After Theatre" supper dances are drawing fashionable gatherings. The Adelaide Melody Band, who made their first appearance this week, play a delightful programme. Their popularity is already established. A dance will be held this evening from 10.30 to 3.30 a.m., and to-morrow from 8 to 12.

DUBLIN UNION'S FINANCIAL POSITION.

Mr. M. O Fodughla (Chairman) presided at the meeting of the Dublin Guardians yesterday. The Clerk reported a debit balance of £1,208, and stated that against that there were considerable sums due to the Board by contributing bodies.

THE TROOPS IN CORK.

DISCOVERY IN THE COURTHOUSE.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

CORK, Wednesday Morning.

When I reached Cork from another area I was agreeably surprised to find the change for the better which has taken place in the city. It is strongly held by Government troops, under the supreme command of Brigadier-General Dalton, who has his headquarters at the Hotel Imperial, while the soldiers are located at various points in the city. The irregulars, as an organised body, have retreated to the hills, but they have left behind numbers who, in the guise of ordinary citizens, are indulging in sniping tactics from a safe distance and under cover. Last evening, while national troops were on duty in McCurtain street intercepting vehicular traffic that appeared to have come from a distance, fire was opened upon them by snipers, who were concealed in the branches of trees on the top of Summerhill (North). The troops, to the number of ten, took cover, and replied to their assailants. The thoroughfare was thronged at the time, and the people scattered in all directions, but when they saw the soldierly way in which the troops silenced the attack they returned, and, extraordinary to relate, stood behind the troops as they fired repeatedly into the trees. The troops, accompanied by a Red Cross ambulance, surrounded the place from which the shots had come, and made an exhaustive search. Two women were taken into custody during these operations, as well as a man, who, it is stated, was found to be in possession of a revolver. The snipers, of course, decamped in time to save their skins. This incident is typical of what the troops have to contend with and to suppress.

For some days the postal staff have been repairing the damaged telegraph instruments at the General Post Office, and it is officially announced that communication has now been restored to Ballincollig, Bandon, Bantry, Castletownbere, Clonakilty, Cloyne, Drimoleague, Dunmanway, Glengariff, Midleton, and Youghal, which had been very hard hit by their isolation for some days past, but all the cross-Channel wires are still unworkable, as well as the Dublin, Kerry, Limerick, Waterford, North of Ireland, and the Midland services. The damage which was done to the Cork Telephone Exchange by the irregulars prior to their flight is so extensive that the service is not expected to be available for some time, while the train facilities at this end of the Great Southern and Western Railway system continue to be suspended, no trains either entering or leaving the Cork station. No less than 800 employés of this company are now idle in this district.

I learn from a reliable source that the destruction of the great military barrack at Fermoy was carried out with great fury. The extensive blocks of buildings were bombed until they were burning fiercely. In addition, the hospital, the soldiers' home, and the aerodrome, the additions to which cost £60,000 alone, are also in ruins. Moorepark and its hutments, as well as Kilworth Camp, have suffered a similar fate.

ARMS IN A COURTHOUSE.

Wednesday Night.

In a later despatch our Special Correspondent writes:—The national troops have assumed temporary occupation of Cork Courthouse, which, for the past twelve months, has been the headquarters of the leaders of the irregulars, and in the course of a minute search of the basement discovered a huge quantity of arms, ammunition, bombs in various stages of production, and soforth. Mr. J. Murphy has been appointed organiser of the new Civic Police for the city, and has been very busily engaged examining applicants. The irregulars who were gathered in small bands in the rural districts of Cork have within the past few days become very active, and resumed their wanton war on all rail and road arteries into the city, but "safety first" being their motto, they have not dared to come nearer than four miles of the city. They succeeded yesterday in cutting all communications to the city on the western and northern sides.

They first rendered all the bridges impassable in the area enclosed between Cork, Blarney, Inniscarra, Ballincollig, and back to Cork by exploding bombs. The principal structures which they partially destroyed were the bridge crossing the Lee between Carrigrohane and Leemount and another bridge spanning a tributary; the bridges at Waterloo, Blarney, and Grenagh, Inniscarra, Faggot Hill, and several smaller bridges. In addition, trees were felled across roads at many points. The blowing up of the bridge at Carrigrohane involved the piercing of the Cork and Muskerry line, which serves a prosperous district lying between Coachford and Donoughmore. The company announce the indefinite suspension of their services. The Cork, Bandon, and South Coast Company, which ceased to run trains on the 8th inst. owing to the viaduct which carries their line over a gorge one hundred feet deep at a point three miles from Cork city being damaged by explosives, was again attacked yesterday, further damage being done to the structure, and a bridge over the road to Fermoy was also destroyed. The method of rendering the roads impassable was chiefly that of felling heavy trees across them, and warning the inhabitants that they were not to be removed.

The problem of unemployment is becoming desperate in the city and district, and a huge labour development scheme at a cost of £5,000,000, which was launched by Mr. F. J. Daly, Chairman of the Cork Harbour Commissioners, with the support of the Government, is to continue, and it is hoped that the operations will absorb a large number of the workless. In response to representations, Mr. Cosgrave, Acting Chairman of the Provisional Government, wrote as follows:—

"Mr. Brennan, of the Ministry of Finance; Mr. Byrne, Architect, Housing Inspector; Mr. O'Dwyer, Engineering Inspector, and Mr. O'Duffy, Chief Inspector, Ministry of Labour, are amongst the officials who have been specially despatched to Cork. They will be in a position to give most valuable assistance in the matters referred to."

These gentlemen have reached Cork, and had several important interviews with the object of pushing on these projects as quickly as possible.

DUBLIN PORT.

DEVELOPMENT WORK.

Mr. O'Loughlin, T.C., at the meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board yesterday, proposed that the Works Committee be instructed to secure the services of a highly-qualified port engineer as consultant, in view of the work and the great amount of money to be expended in developing the port, and, in particular, the Alexandra Basin. He said that, as they would have to spend a great amount of money in carrying out this work, they should get the best possible advice.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Ede.

Mr. Goodbody suggested that they should move very carefully until they knew what the work would cost, and where the money was to come from. Present dues were too high, and should be reduced.

Mr. Baird said that there ought to be a postponement for the present in order that any differences of opinion as to what was needed might be considered by their own officials.

Mr. Munden said that deferring the matter meant only putting off the evil day. Necessary work should be done at once.

Mr. Hewat said that they knew they must face very considerable expenditure in the near future to bring the port up to date, having regard to the trade that they anticipated. They should take their courage in both hands. He was in favour of calling in an expert in anticipation of a big development of trade, and not hang up what had already begun at the Alexandra Basin. As under changed conditions the port should be properly equipped, they were entitled to ask the Government of the country to put the Board's stock on a trustee basis so as to encourage the getting of capital. The Government might also be reasonably asked to guarantee the interest of stock-holders.

The resolution was adopted.

NORTHERN PARLIAMENT OFFICES.

NEWRY AND THE STORMONT CASTLE SITE.

At the monthly meeting of the Council of the Newry Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Fred D. Russell (President) in the chair, a letter was read from the Council of the Belfast Chamber of Commerce requesting co-operation in opposition to the proposal to establish permanently the administrative offices of the Government of Northern Ireland at Stormont Castle, outside Belfast. The views of the Council of the Belfast Chamber of Commerce have been transmitted in the form of a resolution to the Prime Minister who has been asked to receive a deputation on the subject, and it was requested that the Newry Chamber of Commerce should be represented on the deputation.

In the resolution sent to the Prime Minister, the Council of the Belfast Chamber stated that it was with surprise and regret that they had learned that it was the present intention of the Government of Northern Ireland to permanently locate their administrative offices at Stormont Castle, and on behalf of the industrial and commercial community of the city and district they earnestly protested against this arrangement, involving, as it did, unnecessary and unwarrantable public inconvenience. It was of the utmost importance that these offices should be easily accessible for inquiry and conference, and that the transaction of departmental business should be facilitated and expedited as far as possible. The location of the offices beyond the city boundary and railway and tramway connections would perpetually subject the public of the six counties to inconvenience and expense, for which there was no justification, and render more difficult the transaction of business without corresponding advantage. They submitted that it was quite feasible to secure permanent accommodation for the several departments within the central district of Belfast, where they were now satisfactorily functioning, and that the funds provided for the purpose by the Imperial Treasury were adequate to ensure such central location. They, therefore, strongly urged upon the Government the immediate abandonment of the Stormont Castle scheme, so far as it concerned the administrative offices, as one eminently calculated to impede the progress of its administrative machinery and create dissatisfaction throughout the whole of Northern Ireland.

The President thought that the resolution was too strongly worded. Whatever disadvantage it might be to people living in, say, Newry or Armagh, he did not think that to people living in the city of Belfast it was a great inconvenience to go out such a short distance. While he would like to associate himself as far as he could with the Belfast Chamber, he would not like to identify himself with all that was in the resolution. He thought that if they adopted a resolution to the effect that it would be of more advantage to those in outlying districts if the offices could conveniently be in the City of Belfast it would meet the case.

Mr. J. Edgar Connor said that there might be some reasons why the Government had selected Stormont Castle in preference to a place in the city. It was quite possible that they might think themselves more secure from a military or police standpoint, and that it would be safer to have the archives of the six counties in a district away from the city.

The President did not think that security had anything to do with it. He thought it was more a matter of £.s.d. than anything else.

Mr. R. S. Redmond agreed with the President that the wording of the resolution was very strong, especially the last paragraph, in which the Government was asked to abandon the Stormont Castle scheme, the negotiations in connection with which, he presumed, had been completed. He did not think that was a fair request. At the same time there was no doubt it would be inconvenient for public representatives who might have to attend from say, either Derry or Newry directions.

So far as he knew, the offices at present in the City of Belfast were functioning fairly well, and he did not see why they should not largely continue that. He proposed that the President be appointed to represent the Newry Chamber on the proposed deputation to the Prime Minister.

Mr. Connor seconded the motion, which was agreed to.

LARD—Cash quiet, with prime Western 7½ and middle West 5 points down.

COFFEE opened dull 1 point to 2 points down, on European selling, but later rallied on better closing Brazilian market news, buying by trade interests, and shorts covering. The market closed steady at 2 to 4 points rise. Spot steady and unchanged. Approximate sales—59,000. September, 9.24; December, 9.24; March, 9.24; May, 9.24; July, 9.19.

COTTON opened firm, 38 to 35 points higher, and scored further material gains under firm cables (notably from Manchester), bullish private crop reports, bull support, and buying by foreign and New Orleans interests. A temporary reaction was caused by Southern selling and realising, but the rise was quickly resumed on further bad crop news through private channels, the improved spot situation, and Wall street support. Shorts were badly scared, and rushed to cover, the market closing strong at 101 to 95 points gain. Spot steady, 105 points up. New Orleans spot rose 25 points. Receipts—Atlantic 1,000, Gulf 2,000. Exports—Britain 1,000, Continent 1,000. MINNEAPOLIS—Wheat firm, 2⅛c. higher; No. 1 Northern spring, 115½.

WINNIPEG—Wheat opened easy, 1c. to 1⅛c. lower, but reacted, and advanced later, closing firm, 1⅛c. to 1⅛c. up. October, 103⅜; December, 101½. Oats firm at ⅛c. advance; October, 39⅜.

CHICAGO, Thursday.

WHEAT opened easy at ⅛c. to ½c. fall, and further declined under bearish cables, favourable North-West crop reports, and commission house selling; but subsequently rallied, and advanced on smaller interior receipts, predictions of a further decrease, the strength of corn and cash markets, and shorts covering. There was also a demand from milling interests, and the market closed firm, 2c. to 2½c up. Spot steady. No. 2 hard winter, spot, 104½; No 3 hard winter, spot, 103½. September, 103; December, 104½; May, 109½.

CORN opened steady at ⅛c. to ⅛c. advance, and strengthened throughout owing to less favourable crop and weather reports, decreasing stocks, and interior receipts, the improved cash situation, commission house buying for South-West account, active short covering, and support from the bull crowd. The market closed strong, 2⅛c. to 1⅛c. higher. No. 2 mixed, spot, 63½. September, 62; December, 55⅜; May, 59½.

OATS firm at ⅛c. to ⅜c. rise. September, 31⅞; December, 34; May, 37⅞.

PROVISIONS opened easy, and advanced with grain, and also on favourable European advices; then reacted for a while on weakness in the hog department and selling by commission houses. Short covering helped a partial rally, and the market closed irregular, with lard 7½ points down to 2½ up, pork unquoted, and ribs unchanged. Lard—September, 10.65; October, 10.72½; January, 9.02½. Pork unquoted. Ribs—September, 9.85; October, 9.40.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GANLY, SONS, AND CO.—The offerings at this week's sale were larger, and included several lots of good quality and condition. The demand was much the same as last week's, though the bidding appeared to be somewhat more cautious for some lots. A very good clearance was effected. Horned bullocks made from £26 10/- to £20 10/-, best polly bullocks from £25 to £21 10/-, shorthorn heifers £22, Aberdeen Angus cross bullocks from £24 to £22 15/-. Some lots of well-bred young cattle sold well. The top live-weight price of 53/6 was obtained for a choice lot of Aberdeen Angus heifers, bred by Sir Walter Nugent, Bart., which sold at £18 5/- each.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.—At above sale yesterday there was more animated bidding, resulting in higher prices for polly and aged bullocks and heifers. Younger classes also participated in the improved trade. Horned bullocks made—£25 15/- (48/-), £24 15/- (46/-), £22 (48/-), £16 15/- (38/-), £16 10/- (40/-), £15 (42/-), £14 2/6 (37/6); heifers £17 18/- (39/6), £16 (46/-), £14 10/- (39/-); pollies £21 (43/-), £17 10/- (37/6), £16 10/- (40/-); A.A. crosses £24 15/- (51/6), £21 (49/-), £20 10/- (47/-), £20 5/- (48/-), £19 (42/6), £17 10/- (48/-), £17 10/- (46/8); Hereford crosses £11 17/6 (39/-), £10 15/- (43/-).

MESSRS. R. AND J. WILKINSON.—There was a much smaller catalogue for this sale than for some time past, but sufficient for the demand, as the attendance of buyers, as is usual in Horse Show Week, was restricted. A weaker beef trade had a somewhat deterrent effect on traders, but practically all the best lots of cattle were placed, with values on a slightly lower level, at the following figures:—Horned bullocks £26 (47/6), £26 (45/-), £25 5/- (50/6), £25 (45/6), £23 5/- (47/-), £23 5/- (44/-), £23 (44/-), £22 15/- (44/-), £22 10/- (44/6), £22 (45/6), £19 10/- (46/-). Hereford and Angus cross bullocks realised £28 5/- (47/6), £24 10/- (49/-), £22 15/- (49/6), £21 5/- (51/-), £21 5/- (47/6), £20 10/- (53/-), and £19 10/- (47/-). Heifers were a poor show, consisting only of medium-sized sorts, best lots of which were placed at—£19 17/6, £19 15/-, and £19, or 46/- to 51/- per cwt. Some lots of less forward bullocks failed to change hands, it being difficult to get bidders to pass the 40/- per cwt. mark.

The German ex-Crown Prince has left Weiringen to stay with his father at Doorn for the next few weeks.

THE PLANET MARS.
Several believe that the Planet Mars is inhabited. We cannot affirm or deny this, but we can state that in the "Silver Moon," 6 Westland Row, one can get Lunch, Afternoon Tea, or Dinner, beautifully cooked and served, at the proper price. For proof, try it.—(Advt.)

THE DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

FURTHER CHAMPIONSHIP AWARDS.

A NORTHERN EXHIBITOR'S RESOURCE.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The barometer is rising generally over the British Isles, in the rear of a secondary depression now situated over the North Sea. Winds will be westerly, with mainly fair weather, to-day, but showers are likely in places, particularly in the North. There is a probability of further disturbances arriving later from the Atlantic, and maintaining unsettled conditions.

Ireland—Wind westerly, moderate, fresh at times; fair at first, apart from local showers, perhaps rain later; visibility good; moderate temperature.

In consequence of the interruption of the Horse Show programme on Wednesday there was considerably more judging to be carried out yesterday at Ballsbridge than is customary on the Thursday of the Show week. The adjudication upon the hunter classes for the championships took place during the forenoon in the jumping enclosure, and, as usual, excited considerable interest. Following this there was the judging in the harness classes, also an exceptionally heavy task. However, everything passed off without the slightest hitch, and so far as the popular enjoyment of the Show was concerned nothing could have been better. The weather was on its best behaviour, the stiff breeze which was raising dust in the city streets causing somewhat less inconvenience in the well-kept grounds, and tending only to make the afternoon all the cooler and more enjoyable in comparison with the somewhat sultry heat of Wednesday afternoon. At 2.30 p.m. there was a grand parade of prize horses around the jumping enclosure, and an hour later the jumping commenced with an interesting competition for cobs and ponies.

The attendance of the general public was much larger than on the preceding afternoons, and there was an animated scene round the various stalls in the Central Hall. There was also a very large attendance at the Industries Hall, where the Exhibition of Irish Art was the subject of universal praise as being by far the largest and most ambitious of its kind ever assembled in connection with the Horse Show.

Among the visitors to the exhibition yesterday was the Postmaster-General, who spent a considerable time in going round the numerous exhibits, and expressed himself as thoroughly pleased with the arrangement for displaying the paintings and sculptures and the numerous other samples of Irish art embodied in the collection. Mr. J. J. Walsh acted as Chairman of the Aonach Tailteann Committee, at whose instance the art collection was originally assembled. When the Aonach fell through as a result of the conditions prevailing in the country, the exhibition was taken up by the Royal Dublin Society, who have made it a most interesting feature of this year's Show, in itself, well worth a visit to Ballsbridge.

The demonstrations by the Irish countryside workers also drew large audiences to the pavilion adjoining the Veterinary Paddock.

The visitors to this section of the Show yesterday included Major-General Sean McKeon, T.D., and his bride. He was accorded a most enthusiastic reception by his fellow-countrymen and women from the village of Killoe and Ballinalee, who got up a special Irish countryside dance in honour of their visitor and his bride.

A very good sprinkling of cross-Channel holiday-makers was observable in the crowd, and appeared thoroughly to enjoy the entertainment provided. There was a faint echo of the condition of the country, conveyed in a leaflet, issued at the Show ground by the Director, intimating that a Co. Monaghan competitor had overcome difficulties which defeated others, and had arrived at Ballsbridge at 9 p.m. on Wednesday with his five horses, having been on the road since early on Monday morning. By special arrangement the names of these horses were included in yesterday's programme.

THE CHAMPIONS.

There was keen competition for the "Babe in the Woods" Cup, presented by Mr. E. W. Hope-Johnstone, to mark the feat which he accomplished last year, when his famous mare, Babe in the Woods, won outright the Independent Cup for the best hunter in the Show, four years old and upwards. Another new trophy was the "Laidlaw" Cup. The conditions for these two cups were identical, with the exception that the latter was limited to horses bred in Ireland, while the former was for open competition. There being no cross-Channel competitors this year, all horses entered for both cups were eligible. Prospect, owned by Mr. Patrick Carroll, Clonmel, won the "Babe in the Woods" Cup, the winner being a very well-balanced horse, with, however, no very stylish points such as have been apparent in most champion winners in the past.

The reserve for the Championship was Mr. Joseph Laverty's Sweetheart, a very pretty six-year-old brown mare, bred in County Tipperary, with, perhaps, the best furnishing behind the saddle of any of the competitors.

Her performance at the jumping carried her immediately into the reserve place. There was an exceptionally strong competitor for the Championship in Mr. D. A. Christie's Hard to Find, which was first among the heavy-weight four-year-olds. He was for a long time a favourite for the Championship, but when it came to the jumping his age was against him, and he did not enter, which, of course, disqualified him for the principal honour. He was, however, afterwards placed reserve to the champion for the Coote Cup for the best heavy-weight. Another very good class of animal was Colonel Blake's Be Truthful, which was first for the hunter gelding up to 12 and 13 stone: this horse would probably have been reserved for the Championship had he not refused the jumps, and he was subsequently placed first for the Ussher Cup, for the best middle or light weight. In the harness classes the well-known Scottish breeder, Mr. Enoch Glen, of Bathgate, had an exceptionally fine team of horses, which won practically all the prizes. The Northern competitors, usually strong in the harness classes, were absent owing to the interruption of the railway service at Dundalk.

As the afternoon wore on the attendance round the jumping enclosure became very large, and the three competitions were followed with the keenest interest and enthusiasm. No untoward incident occurred to mar the day's enjoyment.

Catering on the balconies during the Show was carried out by Messrs. George Lovell, Ltd.

THE CHAMPION CUPS, ETC.

The adjudication of the Cups for the hunter classes, which had been postponed from Wednesday forenoon, was taken up yesterday at 10 a.m. in the jumping enclosure. The first on the list was the "Babes in the Wood" Champion Cup, presented by Mr. E. W. Hope-Johnstone to commemorate the winning out last year of the Irish Independent Challenge Cup by his horse. It was for the best hunter in the Show, those entered in Classes 11 to 24, inclusive, being eligible to compete. Practically it meant the competition of the winners in these classes, and the final choice of the judges seemed to rest between Mr. P. Carroll's Prospect, the b.g., 6 years, by Kilteel, by Kilwarlin, out of a mare by Prince Dawn, who had won the 15st. and upwards class, 6 years old and upwards; Colonel Blacker's aged b.g. Be Truthful, by Standard Bearer, dam by Rhodorroch, a winner in the light-weight geldings; Mr. V. McDonnell's Toujours La, a 5-year-old bay, by Prepared, by Polymelus—The Bride, by Lochinvar, a winner in the 5-year-old class, 12st. to 13st.; and Mr. Joseph Laverty's 6-year-old brown mare Sweetheart, the winner in Class 19—hunter mares up to 12st to 13st., 6 years and over. It is a condition of this Cup that the horses should be subject to a trial over the whole of the jumping course to test their qualifications as fencers. It might be interesting to have had the awards without this trial. Prospect gave almost a perfect display: he was just a trifle short at the water, but it really was not a fault. Neither Be Truthful nor Toujours La, however, would jump. The former refused over and over again at the hedge, and unshipped his rider there; tried at the bank he was again unwilling—a bad case of stage fright—no more or less. Toujours La was no better either at the hedge or bank—indeed, for a moment it looked as if the rider was going to take a bad fall. Then came Sweetheart, with Miss D. Lawler in the saddle, to give a round good enough to win in a jumping competition proper. The award followed—Prospect receiving the Cup and Sweetheart the reserve. Yet, as suggested, there was very much to like in Be Truthful and Toujours La.

The Laidlaw Champion Cup followed. It differed in conditions from the other only in the fact that the competitors for it must be Irish bred. Be Truthful and Toujours La, however, were both eligible, and the award was nearly immediate—Prospect taking the rosette and Sweetheart the reserve.

However, Be Truthful carried off the Samuel Ussher Roberts Perpetual Challenge Cup, the holder of which was Babes in the Wood. It is for Irish-bred horses entered in Classes 13 to 20, inclusive. Sweetheart again received the reserve.

The Coote Perpetual Challenge Cup, for weight-carriers—entered in Classes 11, 12, 21, or 22—the progeny of a thoroughbred stallion, fell to Prospect, while Mr. D. H. Christie's 4-year-old chestnut gelding Hard to Find was reserved.

The remaining Cup, the Pembroke, is apportioned to the young horses suitable to make hunters. Candidates must be Irish bred, must be bred by exhibitor, and continuously owned by the latter up to time of entry. In a sense, it restricts the field, but it is essentially a model Cup of its kind. Mr. W. P. Hanly, of Lanespark, carried off the honours with Ruddyglow, by Ruddygore, by Red Prince II., while Mrs. Herbinson, Ballymena, received the reserve for the 3-year-old bay gelding San-Thor II., by Thory, by Santoi—Mayflower.

HARNESS CLASSES.

There was a day's arrears of judging of harness classes to be made up yesterday morning, but the limited size of each class and the comparatively small competition made the task an easy one. The chief weakness this year was the absence of Belfast and cross-Channel exhibitors. Had it been possible for some of the Belfast exhibitors to reach Dublin, they at least might have been able to give Mr. Enoch Glen, of Bathgate, Scotland, a run for the money. As it was, he walked over with the beautiful pair of chestnut geldings, Dark Legend and Dark Romance, for the Milward-Jones Challenge Cup for best pair in double harness; and with them carried off also the Brocklebank Challenge Cup for best exhibit driven in tandem. Both carried first prize, of course, in their respective classes; and, in addition, this Scottish exhibitor won three first prizes and one second for the day—a good morning's work.

For example, he commenced by taking the first and second in the open single harness class, over 15 hands, with Dark Legend and Dark Romance, respectively, as nice a pair of showy horses and movers as has been seen for years at the Show. Mat, a black gelding, exhibited by Mr. W. C. Walker, Killinick, Wexford, was placed third, while a local exhibitor, Mr. J. Murphy, took the reserve with a very nice b.g.—Flying Machine.

Only two competed in the open class, over 14 and not exceeding 15 hands—Mr. Enoch Glen's 4-year-old ch. filly Glenavon Coronation, and the aged b.g. Paddy, shown by Mr. P. Sarsfield, Dublin—and they received the awards in the order given. The next open class—not exceeding 14 hands—was won by Mr. Glen's Glenavon Repute; Mr. Quinn, of Dublin, was placed second for the b.g. Sir George, while third went to Mr. J. Peddar Phipps for the roan pony Miss Phœbe.

In the double harness and tandem classes the absence of Ulster competitors was really felt. In neither, as has been stated before, was there anyone to oppose Mr. Enoch Glen's pair of chestnuts, and in both they walked over. Still, they were of real championship class, so that the honours were deserved.

The remaining events, all in single harness, were confined to Ireland. Mr. W. C. Walker received a well-merited first in the over 15 hands class for the bl. g. Mat. The other prize winners were local, Flying Machine taking the second and Mr. E. Murphy's Battleaxe third. In the next class, over 14 and not exceeding 15 hands, Mr. M. Corcoran won with the dark brown mare Miss Savoyard, Mr. J. Kennedy being second with the ch. g. Ashtown, and Mr. T. Murphy third with Tommy. A reserve went to Mr. Sarsfield's b.g. Paddy. There were only three in the not exceeding 14 hands class, and here Mr. Quinn's Sir George won, Miss Phœbe taking the second, and Dr. Day, of Cork street, the third with Billy Buster.

PRIZE LIST.

CUPS AND SPECIAL PRIZES.

The "Pembroke" Cup.—Presented to the Royal Dublin Society by the Earl of Pembroke, with the view of encouraging improvement in the breed of Irish horses. This Cup is for the best animal entered in Classes 21 to 26, inclusive, bred in Ireland by the exhibitor, and continuously owned by the exhibitor up to the time of entry. To be won three years in succession by the same exhibitor before it becomes his property. Now held by A. Hanlou, to whom it was awarded (first time), in 1921, for The Master. Awarded to W. P. THE JUMPING.

CHAMPION COMPETITION.

TIPPERARY HORSE WINS.

There was a remarkably large attendance in the Jumping Enclosure during the afternoon, when the three important competitions arranged for the day were being run off. The stands were not as well filled as in some previous years, but the reason for this was probably the delightful weather conditions, many people preferring to view the competitions in the open from the banks around the ground, which were packed. The jumping again was up to a high standard, especially in the Champion Competition, in judging which the adjudicators adopted rather stringent methods, the slightest mistake causing a horse to be sent out. As on the other days, the gate proved the most difficult obstacle, and many an otherwise fine performance was wrecked at this jump. Why this should be it is difficult to explain, but the general opinion voiced by the riders seemed to be that the dull colouring of the gate caused the many failures.

Competition D, the first to come on, was for cobs and ponies, who were sent over the full course, and, on the whole, the performances were very good. Mr. J. Laverty's Kitty, ridden by Mr. T. Gormley, was put through three rounds, and, except for a slight mistake at the water the first time, there were few errors marked against her. She was a clear winner, and second and third prizes went to Mr. J. Bamber's Maid of the Mountain and Miss D. Lawlor's Powder Puff.

No less than fifty horses turned out for the Champion Competition, the value of which this year secured the nice prize of £100. Amongst the number was Short Tail, winner of the Champion Wall Jump and Competition B on Wednesday. A rap at the gate, however, put this horse out of the reckoning early, and, after a testing series of trials, the award went to Mr. J. D. Fogarty's Budd Fisher, who, with Old Acquaintance, won the Inter-Hunt Competition for Tipperary Hounds the previous day. Miss O'Connor's My Destiny gained second prize, and another of Mr. J. D. Fogarty's horses, Hoofey Horrigan, secured third, the fourth award going to Redgate, a reliable jumper, who was seldom astray at any jump.

Competition F, the third of the afternoon's series, proved quite as interesting, and it was only a just reward for a really safe and clever jumper when the judges' decision went in favour of Mr. R. G. Johnston's Redgate. Mrs. Mills McDonnell, riding her own horse, Hell, gained second honours, and third and fourth prizes went to Miss A. J. Barrington's Circus Girl and Mr P. Carroll's Prout. Amongst additional entries for yesterday's competitions were five horses the property of Mr. E. Carvill, of Castleblayney, who had been, since early on Monday, on the road, and only arrived the previous evening.

COMPETITION D.—Over the Course, as follows—1, bank and ditch; 2, ditch and bank; 3, stone wall, not less than 4 feet 6 inches high; 4, double bank; 5, water jump; 6, gate, not less than 4 feet high. Judges—John J. Ryan, Scarteen, Knocklong, and the Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie, St. Brendan's, Sandymount. For cobs and ponies entered in Classes 27 to 31. Catch weights—First prize, £15; second, £10; third, £5; fourth, £3.

Margie refused the wall, and, though subsequently going over, was slovenly all the way round. The Outcast after refusing the wall five times, was sent back. Gloria lost for hitting the gate had a fair round. Nun's Lap took a few stones off the wall and hit the gate, otherwise had a good round. Didums, who went round a bit too quickly, only hit the gate. May Queen repeatedly refused the double and was sent back. Skipper went round in faultless style to the gate, which he took away. Powder Puff cleared all obstacles cleverly and was the best so far. Kitty, but for dropping her hind legs into the water, had an excellent round, and Maid of the Mountain was little inferior. Bobbie was sent back after refusing the ditch and bank.

In a subsequent round Miss D. Lawlor made a wonderful recovery when Powder Puff blundered after landing over the water. Kitty, in two rounds, was almost faultless, and she was given first prize; Maid of the Mountain was placed second, Powder Puff third, and Didums fourth.

CHAMPION COMPETITION.—Over the course. Judges—John J. Ryan, Scarteen, Knocklong, and the Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie, St. Brendan's, Sandymount. Catch weights (open to all comers). First prize, £100; second, £50; third, £30; fourth, £10.

Blair's Hope hit the gate, and but for this was as good as Hoofey Horrigan, who alone was left in. The Gunner threw his rider over the double, and Sailor Boy, who had a good round, was left in. Dick would not take the wall, but Whitegate hardly put an iron astray. Fizz and Tango both went round in splendid style. Crinken Lad was better than Short Tail, who spoiled a good round by hitting the gate. Burgamo hit the wall and hurdle, and was put out in favour of Ball, who was excellent. Singing Water and Budd Fisher were good, but the former's first refusal of the wall put him out. Tank gave a faultless display, but Wilson's Hill was put out. Circus Girl and Rory both took away the gate and went out. Chum and Camel, ridden by ladies, were slovenly at some of the jumps, and were sent back. Old Acquaintance pitched rider over the water, and with Jerry, who made two slight mistakes, went out. The Turk took a few stones off the wall and breasted the hurdle. Both he and Ted went out. Artist was better than Rock of Cashel, and alone was left in. Hasty Cake, after refusing the double, threw the rider, and Prout also was put out. Hell had a good round, as had Peter, both being retained. Nugget and The Sultan were put out for hitting the gate. Mullabury took a big slice off the wall, and Miss Holt parted company with her rider at the double. Kitty hit the gate, and, in company with Persistent, went out. Again the gate brought about the downfall of Nellie and Adventurer. White Diamond had a good round, but Pongo did not go beyond the first jump. Nightlight took a couple of stones from the wall and was outclassed by Sunspots, who had a fine round. Bedelia and Kitty II. were excellent. Truce and Redgate were fair up to the gate, which both hit, but Redgate was retained. Flashlight was recalled after refusing the ditch and bank, but My Destiny had a fair round. The Outcast and Dick were very moderate and were early put out.

After three more rounds Budd Fisher was awarded first prize, My Destiny second, Hoofey Horrigan third and Redgate fourth.

COMPETITION F.—Over the course—Judges—John J. Ryan, Scarteen, Knocklong; and the Hon. Mr. Justice Wylie, St. Brendan's, Sandymount. For horses entered in Classes 18, 19, 20 and 24. First prize winner in Competition C at last year's Show, or first prize winner in Competition A at this Show, not eligible. Catch weights—First prize, £25; second, £15; third, £10; fourth, £5.

Nightlight was faulty at the wall, and Sunspots, who was awkward at the water, went through the gate. Both went out. Sailor Boy nearly came down at the water, and, in company with Smoky, went out. Wilson's Hill pecked after landing over the water, and Lord Hugh took away the gate. Camel also blundered after the water, and Circus Girl, who was clever at all jumps, was the only one so far left in. Chum and Artist made mistakes, but the former was left in. Rock of Cashel hit the wall hard, and was not as good as Ted, who was retained. Hasty Cake and Prout were left in after a moderate round. Hell and Miss Holt went round together, and cleared everything, including the gate. Both were left in. Jerry's Boy hit the wall and gate, but Redgate gave a good round. Patience refused the ditch and bank, and also the wall, and Nellie took away the gate. Gentleman Joe raced at his jumps and made mistakes, whereas Bedelia was fair and was left in. Budd Fisher went round in faultless style, but Find Out was slovenly. Rory, who went round alone, did well, but parted company with rider on the top of the double.

In the next round Miss Holmes was thrown by Chum over the water, but was pluckily remounted and completed the course. Circus Girl was excellent this time. Ted hit the gate. Hasty Cake took a few stones from the wall and hit the gate hard. Prout had a good round, a refusal at the double being the only blemish. Hell did not put an iron astray, and was applauded for a great round. Miss Holt threw rider at the double, otherwise did well, and Redgate had an excellent round. Bedelia's first and only mistake was at the gate. Budd Fisher hit the wall and gate slightly, going out.

Prout was then awarded fourth prize. Circus Girl, Hell, and Redgate went round again, and the awards were made as follows:—Redgate first, Hell second, Circus Girl third.

BLOODSTOCK SALES.

The second half of the catalogue of yearlings was got through expeditiously by Mr. Falkiner, who was again assisted by Mr. George Jessop and Mr. J. J. Byrne, an early clearance being effected, but, although the attendance in the Sale Paddock was larger than on Wednesday, the biddings, even for the choicer lots, still lacked animation, the 320 guineas realised for the Sunningdale colt sent up by Mr. Robert Mullen, which was purchased by Mr. T K Laidlaw, being the best price recorded. A handsome Flying Orb colt, the property of Mr. C. T. Vandeleur, fetched 275 guineas (Mrs. Bendir), and Mr. J. McKenna had a good-looking grey colt by Royal Canopy knocked down to him at 200 guineas, while the Irish Bloodstock Agency took the grey filly, by Book—Sweet Sally at 260 guineas. Mr. Reardon's Prospector filly fetched 200 guineas, the purchaser being Mr. W. Rankin, and at 500 guineas the brown colt by Righ Mor—St. Brenda, winner of the Perpetual Challenge Cup on Tuesday, was passed out unsold. Prices and purchasers' names:—

IRISH INDUSTRIES.

ART IN COMMERCE.

The exhibition of Irish Art and allied industries at the Horse Show has been a remarkable success. The Industries Hall, where this show is being held, has been filled with interested visitors every hour of each day. Indeed, so wonderfully attractive has the exhibition proved that it has been decided to re-open it on Saturday at popular prices.

Yesterday the Postmaster-General was among the crowd of visitors present during the afternoon. Mr. Walsh spent a considerable time in the Industries Hall, and expressed himself very pleasurably surprised with the success which had attended this part of the discarded Aonach Tailteann scheme. He stated that he had no idea that such a fine thing was going to be the outcome of the proposal to form an Art section in connection with the Aonach. Sir Horace Plunkett was also another deeply interested visitor at this part of the Ballsbridge Show.

Of the various sections of the exhibition the jewellery naturally made the most personal appeal. Jewellery without an artistic value is dross of the worst sort. These exhibits consist of necklaces, brooches, pins, cloak clasps, pendants, etc. The Royal Dublin Society awarded a silver medal to Mrs. Meave O'Byrne-Doggett for her plaque-a-four enamel pendant, which is a miniature stained glass with gold run into it; transparency obtained by polishing makes it a most effective ornament. This is one of the best of the jewellery exhibits, but, as a whole, they gave evidence of a marked advance on work of the kind shown at previous exhibitions.

Miss Lucy Garrett has two remarkable examples—a pendant in gold and silver, with black opal, and a silver and gold brooch with topaz and mother of pearl. It is particularly fine, and the detail is worked out with rare accuracy.

The decorative panels in enamelled metal, which are shown in three different types, are full of interest. The "Cloisome" type, a style for which the Japanese are celebrated, is represented by some fine work, as also is the "Champ Levé" type, which is much used in heraldic ornamentation, and has been adapted in Cathedrals for stall plates. The Champ Levé is a process in which the enamel is run into the recesses in the metal, and then fired and polished. A typical Limoges enamel is also shown. It originated in the town of Limoges, and is a system by which the enamel is painted on the metal, which is afterwards fired. The underlying metal is allowed to show through the enamels, so that one gets light and shading independent of the enamel. The metal plates exhibited in the Industries Hall should be carefully inspected to gain acquaintance with their comparative merits. This is work applied to the decoration of metal bowls, boxes, cups, jewel caskets, etc. Some excellent cabinet-making is also worthy of particular notice.

ROYAL IRISH INDUSTRIES ASSOCIATION.

In the centre of the annexe leading to the Industries Hall Stand 76, occupied by the Royal Irish Industries Association, will attract most visitors' attention. The Association is already well known, for its activities have, for years, embraced the whole of Ireland, while the quality and excellence of the goods produced by the workers for the Association, which receive permanent exhibition at the showrooms, 85 Grafton street, Dublin, have an established reputation. Full evidence to the fact has been given during the Horse Show, where the stand has been a constant attraction for visitors. It has become known that Chanel, the leading Parisian modiste, has adopted the Association's tweeds. As a matter of fact, these tweeds are at the moment being shown in Paris for this autumn's and winter's suitings, with the result that there has been awakened a sharpened interest here.

On the Show stand there are homespuns in beautiful colours, including some delightful shades of deep orange and brown. They have also very fine tweeds suitable for shooting suits, while some of the homespuns have a measure of the natural oil of the sheep left in, making them showerproof. There are displayed some smart sporting hats, made in tweeds, but much interest will be taken in a simple loom in operation, actually weaving the homespuns, which, like the tweeds, are dyed with colours secured from lichen and mosses.

Hosiery is also on exhibition in colours to match the homespuns. Other interesting points of this stall are some much-admired leather work. Knitted goods are also shown for wraps, coats, and ladies' suits made in the finest wools and beautifully coloured. All the goods supplied by the Irish Industries Association are made in the peasants' cottages, and year by year the work is bringing profit and comfort to an increasing number of homes.

CUALA INDUSTRIES.

Stand 71, occupied by the Cuala Industries, Dundrum, County Dublin, run by the Misses Yeats, sisters of the famous poet, is concerned with the only enterprise in Ireland producing very rare books. The Misses Yeats also show some women's evening wraps of special design, as well as handbags, children's dresses, and all sorts of embroidery of quaintness and beauty due to the decorative genius of these women.

IRISH LACE AND LINGERIE COMPANY.

The articles shown at this stand, No. 73, are all the work of peasants, and done in their own homes. The work consists chiefly of beautiful specimens of linen and nainsook. The stall is run by the Misses Hannigan, and yesterday it received a special visit from General and Mrs. MacKeon, who spent some time of their honeymoon at Ballybofey, Co. Donegal, where the company has headquarters. Among the articles are ladies' hand sewn and hand embroidered underwear, as well as hand embroidered table linen.

"CROCK OF GOLD."

On this stall is a great variety of articles, including dress lengths and skirt lengths of material dyed by themselves and woven on their own looms. There are, also, curious art cups, bowls, trays, lamp shades, raffia mats and raffia trimmed hats. A characteristic of the decorative articles is the Celtic and original ornamentation.

IRISH DECORATIVE ART ASSOCIATION.

The Irish Decorative Art Association has its show at Stand 78, and its place of business at 35 Wellington place, Belfast. It is an interesting stall, which compelled attention for its display of hand made jewellery, pottery, leather work and stained wood. Illuminations of charm and variety are a work of the Association, which also produces calendars and Christmas cards.

CLUNA STUDIOS.

Miss Gertrude Grew, A.R.C.A., and Miss Margaret O'Keeffe, the designers, are responsible for the work produced by the Cluna Studios at 39 Harcourt street, Dublin, which is shown at Stand 79. They do illuminations and lamp shades to suit different styles of rooms. Embroidery and jewellery of original design is displayed on the stand, where are also shown many samples of decorative designing.

AVOCA CHILDREN'S INDUSTRY.

Mrs. Alice K. Wynne, of Tigroney, Avoca, Co. Wicklow, has at Stand No. 77 some of the quaintest exhibits in the Show. These are toy rabbits, goats, donkeys, and ducks, made by children, as cottage industries. They have one outstanding merit in that they are perfectly harmless to babies, being made of materials that could not hurt. They attracted a lot of notice, especially from mothers. The main object of the industry is to find profitable occupation for cottiers, and there is evidently a successful future for the scheme.

CRAFT WORKERS, LIMITED.

The Craft Workers, Ltd., 39 Harcourt street, Dublin, display examples of their works and wares at Stand 80. The principle exhibits are leather goods of various kinds, made from leather produced by the Dublin Tannery Co. for the most part. Hand-tooled Celtic ornaments in calf, morocco, and goat skin in the form of bags, purses, etc., were objects of interest. There were also hand-stencilled designs in different colours for cushion and cosy covers, and hand-stencelled curtain designs, lamp shades for electric light, and hammered metal work for looking-glass and picture frames.

LONDONDERRY HAND-EMBROIDERY INDUSTRY.

Stand No. 75 is run by Mrs. Patterson Boyle, of the Benbradagh and Roe Valley Hand-Embroidery Industry, of Dungiven, Londonderry. The exhibits consist of excellent wools and lingerie, shear linen, lawn, and voile blouses and jumpers: articles of merit and worth. Special designs in christening robes, children's day and night gowns and frocks, babies' clothes, handkerchiefs of the finest linen and embroidery, as well as household and table linen.

MISS M'DERMOTT'S STALL.

Miss Edith K. M'Dermott shows at Stand No. 74 goods emanating from 22 Wellington place, Belfast, of a well-assorted and attractive character, which have the merit of distinctive design. They are of woodwork, pottery, and jewellery. There is leather work as well as hand-woven scarves, hat-bands, etc.

MESSRS. COMBRIDGE AND CO.

Litterateurs, print connoisseurs, and book lovers will rejoice in Messrs. Combridge and Company's show, amongst the many things that have interested the general public this year at Ballsbridge. They show two exceedingly rare old prints of Dublin. One of these prints will have a poignant interest for all Dubliners. It is of the Four Courts soon after the original building was erected, and shows the broken coal quay bridge. A second print is of College Green and Trinity College. These are asserted to be the rarest Dublin prints.

M. ROWAN AND CO.

A stand which attracted considerable attention at the Show was that of Rowan's, seed merchants, 51 and 52 Capel street (Stand No. 54). Gardeners and others interested viewed with interest a well-laid-out ornamental bedding, which lent a touch of brightness to the surroundings. Many useful garden requisites were on view.

PRODUCE AND FOOD.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN CATTLE, North Circular road, Thursday.—There was some increase in supply of cattle to-day, but a substantial falling off in the sheep and lamb branch. More cross-Channel buyers in evidence, and usual following of local and provincial men. Trade altogether followed much the same cautious routine as on last Thursday. Prime cattle, being scarce, placed freely around previous rates, but secondary descriptions were plentiful, irregular, and difficult to cash. The sheep and lamb market was dominated by a slightly healthier sale, but business, all the same, proved cautious, and former prices in the main, were difficult to beat. However, eventually, with fair shipping support, a tolerably satisfactory sell-up, especially of anything of useful quality, was effected:—

	Numbers on sale This week	as compared with last.		Corresponding weeks of 1921.	1920.
Beasts	6,070	increase	461	4,743	4,727
Sheep and lambs	10,660	decrease	1,239	10,200	12,327
Veal calves ..	10	decrease	4	4	8

Beast market opened with a healthier disposition, and prime bullocks and heifers readily placed at from 52s. to 55s. per cwt.; super-grade bullocks, say, 56s. and 57s. The Scotch demand for black and polled Angus was a bit more cautious, yet good. 57s. 6d. to 58s. seemed to be general price offered to weigh for such finished cattle, although 1s. or so more was occasionally obtained for an extra nice article. Good medium cattle from 49s. to 50s. and 51s. per cwt.; other descriptions from 38s. to 48s. per cwt. It will be seen that a very wide gap continues to exist between the better and secondary qualities of cattle. Beef cows of prime young class were in fairly good demand from 42s. to 46s. per cwt., the latter representing something near heifer class. Old and rougher descriptions of cows from 26s. to 40s. according to merit.

With a considerable relief in pressure of supplies the sheep market moved on evener lines, and on last week's basis of money, lambs being, perhaps, occasionally firmer, if not actually dearer, and ultimately there was a tolerably good clearance effected of everything with pretension to slaughter or store usefulness. Choice wether mutton made from 11d. to 1s. per lb., perhaps a fraction or so more for extra nice qualities. Medium classes of mutton 9½d. to 10½d., and coarse descriptions, say, 8d. to 9d. per lb. Best run of lambs from 44s. to 60s. each, and choice heavier descriptions from 65s. to 70s. apiece, and in some exceptional cases 72s. to 75s. each. Culls and small lambs, say, 22s. to 40s. each. The 10 veal exhibits were of very ordinary description, and called for no special notice.

DUBLIN DAIRY CATTLE, North Circular road, Thursday.—There were just 310 exhibits on milcher market, few of which showed more than ordinary quality in breeding or capacity. For the pick of market £30 to £33, £34, and £35 each were prices recorded, but after these trade ruled tedious and slow, and dealers were obliged to be satisfied with a tight margin, if any, of profit to effect an exchange of ownership in ordinary cows and springers. Medium classes, £24 to £28 each; small, etc., £12 to £20 and £22.

DUBLIN PIG, North Circular road, Thursday.—Although there was a small market of swine put forward here this morning, trade proved very disappointing and depressed. Entries registered but 777, and in point of quality the gathering generally was much below average standard. There were many important buyers absent, and a certain local-curing firm reduced their limit of price approximately to £5 10/-. Pork butchers, too, complain that the trade is becoming less remunerative, and seek to obtain hogs on more reasonable terms. Altogether, in the circumstances, matters were against owners, and the wind-up tedious. Choice sizeable to stout hogs £5 12/- to £5 15/- per cwt.; occasional fancy sorts, £6; stout to heavy, £5 2/6 to £5 10/-; sow pigs, 65/- to 95/- per cwt. dead reckoning. Store pigs cautiously bid for, but continue relatively dear and hard to buy.

YORK, Thursday.—More Irish store cattle on offer than to meet the demand, and two pens of English. As usual, Irish included some very useful animals; others only moderate quality. Although a good number of animals were sold, there was hesitation in speculation. Rather more calving and milch cows, but trade dragging. Good show of lambs; trade good.

BIRMINGHAM, Thursday.—Supply of pigs on the small side, with business moderately active. The earlier rates of the earlier part of the week ruled. Quotations, per score (dead weight)—Sizeable bacons, 22/-; small pigs, 21/-; sows, 17/-.

BRISTOL, Thursday.—Moderate supply of beef, 115/- to 120/- per cwt. Short supply of mutton; best wethers, 1/6; lamb, 1/6 to 1/8. Six hundred store cattle, mostly sold at late rates. Milch cows, £22 to £28, and £39 for extra.

GLASGOW MARKET REPORT, 16th August, 1922.—Hegarty and Kelly, 275 Duke street, Glasgow, report average supplies of cattle in to-day's market. For all classes there was a steady demand at recent rates. Sheep and lambs met a good inquiry at higher prices. Telegrams—Hegarty, Glasgow.—(Advt.)

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Thursday.—BACON—Live hogs at Chicago showed a fair decline, but speculative products were somewhat irregular, and imports into Liverpool were on a fair scale. No new feature, however, obtained in the bacon situation here, holders again offering sparingly owing to the moderate stocks available, while a fair inquiry continued to be experienced, especially for bellies and light averages of Cumberlands, and late prices were repeated for all selections. HAMS more firmly held for short cut, which are raised 2/- to 110/- to 118/- per cwt., with a better inquiry, but other cuts are generally quiet and unaltered. Shoulders attract little attention, but no quotable change made in values. Canadian Wiltshires, with Irish and Continental, remain scarce at fully late rates. LARD on the spot is sparingly offered, and, with a fair inquiry, prices are raised to 65/3 to 65/9 for prime steam and 66/6 to 68/- for American refined in boxes. CHEESE moves fairly, and, with further strength cabled from Canada, prices displayed a continued upward tendency. BUTTER firm and fairly active at the recent advance. Irish creameries, exceptionally, being raised further 2/- to 196/- to 198/- per cwt. EGGS dearer for Irish hen at 16/- to 17/- per 120, the supply of duck being now practically exhausted.

This facility will be available only on production of their tickets to passengers from the Channel steamer to the special train for them at Calais. TONIO'S SUCCESS.

DUNCAN GRAY WINS FOAL STAKES.

The Leicester executive had a fine attraction in the County Foal Stakes, for it attracted Sir John Robinson's smart grey Pommern colt, Duncan Gray, who had won his two previous engagements, and had not been out since winning the Woodcote Stakes at Epsom. Evidently, from the paddock inspection, he had not gone back since Derby week, and both Sir John and Lady Robinson were much pleased with him as he was being saddled; but, as Sir John remarked, "He has a lot of weight to give away." He triumphed, however, over several difficulties, for, not one of the best away, he was not too well placed at the outset, and did not come down the hill so well as at Epsom; but he then put up a most game and determined display, and, running on, scored a particularly popular win. The main objective of Duncan Gray is the Champagne Stakes at Doncaster, but it was decided to give him the benefit of an outing here, with the result that he picked up a very valuable prize. Close home Lacock swerved very badly; otherwise he would have been amongst the first three. Concertina, one of two that ran for Manton, was second favourite, but the stable's two-year-olds are still backward, and are not being hurried, and there was more hopefulness than confidence in Lord Astor's filly.

Despite his penalty, Tonio scored his third successive win in the Leicestershire Selling Handicap, a result that had been fully anticipated; but the easiest win of the afternoon was that of another consistent and penalised horse, Valley, who, getting slightly the best of the start in the Bradford Mid-Weight Handicap, finished with no less than eight lengths to spare from Gally Strickland, the Windsor winner.

Still another successful favourite was Johnny Roebuck, who fulfilled expectations in the Kegworth Handicap, but had little to spare at the finish.

1.50.—THE WELBECK (S.) PLATE, £200. For two-year-olds; second £10. 5 f.

Farndon Bridge got badly away. Rosemead and Felice colt began slowly, and Danae made play from Katie, Portsoy and Concertina. Half-way, Portsoy took up the running, but Duncan Gray, coming with a long run from the distance, won cleverly by half a length; a length separated second and third. Concertina was fourth, Danae fifth, Lacock sixth, Volcexeter seventh, Rosemead eighth and Farndon Bridge last.

HURST PARK

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME AND SELECTIONS.

There is every prospect of a most successful meeting at Hurst Park to-day and to-morrow. The card for the opening day is most interesting, and all the races are of good value. The most important event is the Richemount Three-Year-Old Stakes, for which, St. Louis, however, is said to be a non-runner. Most of the Newmarket horses have arrived for to-day's races, and I like best Soubriquet, but if Fred Power is sent on from Beckhampton he should be a source of danger. Full selections are as follow:—

Palace Handicap—Pomme Anna.
Cowley T.Y.O. Plate—Phanariot.
Richemount Stakes—Soubriquet.
Lennox T.Y.O. Plate—Twelve Pointer; if absent, Phoenix.
Fountain Handicap—Cottage.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP.

KENT V. NOTTS.

COLLINS'S REMARKABLE BOWLING.

There was sensational cricket at Dover yesterday, Notts being dismissed in two hours and forty minutes for 120. This was a larger total than at one time seemed probable, as eight wickets were down for 71. Hardstaff and Barratt put on 23 in twenty-five minutes for the ninth wicket, and Richmond helped Hardstaff to add 26 for the last. Hardstaff carried out his bat for 18 after batting an hour and three-quarters. It was principally due to Collins that Notts were dismissed for such a small score, the fast bowler accomplishing the best performance of his career in taking six wickets for 18. At one period, after lunch, he sent down eleven overs for five maidens, ten runs and five wickets. He was assisted by capital fielding, Woolley making two exceptional catches. Following on 231 behind, Notts made an even worse start than before, four wickets falling in a quarter of an hour for 13. Once more it was Collins who caused the collapse, his figures at this point being four wickets for nine. Hardstaff and Payton then made a big effort to pull the game round, both batting carefully, but never neglecting the opportunity of scoring. Notts now require 133 to save the innings defeat. Collins up to now has taken all six wickets for 41. Score:—

SURREY V. LEICESTERSHIRE.

A most interesting struggle at the Oval yesterday ended with Surrey wanting 155 runs for victory, with seven wickets to fall. The bowlers fared so well that during a full day 19 batsmen were dismissed for 275 runs. Showers had slightly affected the pitch, and Astill, with three wickets for 10, and Skelding three for 18, disposed of Surrey's outstanding six wickets for 28 runs in fifty minutes, five falling for 11. Sandham, sixth out at 121, batted finely for two hours and forty minutes, scoring his 57 without fault. Holding a lead of 91, Leicestershire were dismissed in three hours and five minutes for 155, although Astill and Sharp added 69 in eighty minutes for the fourth wicket. Fender took seven wickets for 37. Score:—

SUSSEX V. LANCASHIRE.

Sussex followed up in fine style at Hastings yesterday the advantage they had previously gained over Lancashire, who when play ceased were still 44 runs behind with six men out for 175 in their second innings. This was largely due to the skilful display of batting given by George Cox, the veteran of the team, who, going in fifth wicket down overnight, was last out when the innings, which occupied four hours and three-quarters, closed just before half-past three o'clock for 341. Cox batted altogether rather more than three hours, ten 4's being his chief scoring strokes. His innings was marked throughout by sound judgment. He and Young for the sixth wicket put on 94 in seventy-five minutes, while Tate helped in a useful stand producing 50 in as many minutes. It should be mentioned that Makepeace kept wicket instead of Blomley, who was hit the previous day while batting, and had a very bad knee. Lancashire fared better at the second attempt, but were always struggling for runs. Hallows left at 29, and Makepeace at 57, and after Watson had helped Ernest Tyldesley to add 48, the fourth wicket fell at 119. Ernest Tyldesley, who batted much better than in the first innings, and James Tyldesley put on 52 in half an hour—Ernest, so far, batting two hours. Score:—

YORKSHIRE V. MIDDLESEX.

On a wicket drying after the night's heavy rain, the Yorkshire bowlers had Middlesex in difficulties at Leeds yesterday, and the Metropolitans found runs so hard to get against the varied attack of the Yorkshiremen that they occupied the wickets for four hours and ten minutes to score 151 for eight wickets. Admitting the difficulty of the pitch early in the day there seemed little justification for the sedate spell of batting continued later on. The wicket was not dry enough for cricket until 1 o'clock; then Middlesex, who on Wednesday had scored three without loss in response to Yorkshire's opening total of 266, proceeded with their innings. They lost Lee at 12 and Twining at 21. Then Hendren hit a 6 from Macaulay, and two 4's from Waddington, before Kilner, going on for the second time, in his first over dismissed both Hendren and Mann. Four wickets were down for 43. Hearne and Stevens were occupied fifty minutes in adding 24 runs. Then in the next thirty minutes, by somewhat brighter batting, Haig helped Hearne to add 32 more. The feature of the innings was the imperturbable defence of Hearne, who skilfully opposed the varieties of the Yorkshire bowling, which was repeatedly changed. After Haig left Skeet stayed in for fifty minutes to score 11, and during the seventh wicket partnership any slight probability of Middlesex being made to follow on disappeared. During its progress Hearne completed his 50 after batting three hours. After Skeet left at 126 twenty more runs were added in forty-five minutes before Hearne left, caught at the wicket. In making 60 runs, Hearne was batting no less than four hours, and gave no chance. At the close of the day Middlesex were 115 runs behind, with two wickets in hand. Score:—

SOMERSET V. ESSEX.

When the luncheon interval arrived at Taunton yesterday Essex looked like building up a useful lead on the first innings, for they had Perrin and O'Connor well established with the total 231 and four wickets to fall. These all fell, however, on the resumption for 13 runs. Ashton (52) played the best cricket for Essex, and gave no chance in the hour and a half he was batting until caught in the slips. Perrin included one six and four fours in his innings of 41, which was uneven, but with O'Connor (26) put on 49 in fifty minutes for the seventh wicket. Freeman (43) got the ball to the boundary four times, and gave no chance. Somerset second innings was disastrous, for at 24 MacBryan retired with a much discussed run out decision, and 16 runs later a ball from Douglas got up so quickly that it hit Johnson on the cheek bone and closed his eye. Johnson collapsed, and was helped to the pavilion with the fateful total of 13 to his credit, but did not resume the innings. Lowry (25) and Greswell (17), for the fifth wicket, put on 37 in a quarter of an hour, but that was the only dash of colour, and the whole innings lasted about two hours and a quarter. Essex being set to get 85 to win, lost four wickets for 36. Score:—

	1st Inns.	2nd Inns.
Somerset	216	113
Essex	244	36 (4)

HAMPSHIRE v. WORCESTERSHIRE.

Batting on a dry wicket, Hampshire compiled the excellent total of 326 at Southampton yesterday, and were only 29 behind their opponents, who played their innings under very different circumstances. Rain delayed the resumption of the match for an hour and a quarter, but there was no further interruption from the weather. Murray (51) and Newman (97) gave the home side a good start, scoring 93 for the second wicket. Murray batted most stylishly for an hour; in fact, his innings was the most polished of all. Newman remained for three hours and a half, obtaining his highest score of the season, and being out to a particularly smart catch at short leg. Mead played very soundly for 48, while Bowell played long enough to score 40 and to complete an aggregate of one thousand runs for the season. The most entertaining batting of the day was provided by Day, who, although handicapped by lameness, scored 38 in less than half an hour, hitting seven 4's and one 3. Root bowled well, capturing 7 wickets for 85. Going in a second time, the visitors lost Bowley and Tarbox for 46. Score:—

	1st Inns.	2nd Inns.
Worcestershire	355	46 (2 wkts.)
Hampshire	326

GLOUCESTERSHIRE v. GLAMORGAN.

Gloucestershire defeated Glamorgan yesterday by nine wickets at Bristol, and thus secured their sixth victory of the season. On the opening day each side completed an innings, which left the home county leading by eight runs. Rain during the night rendered the wicket rather treacherous, and the visitors failed so completely before Parker that they were dismissed in just under two hours for 50. Apart from Tait (20), and Whittington (11), who got half that total for the first wicket, no one faced him with confidence, and twice three wickets fell at the same total. In the end he surpassed Dennett's fine figures of Wednesday by taking seven wickets for 23. Mills also met with success, although he had to bowl against the strong wind. This meant that Gloucestershire only needed 43 to win. Robinson left at 10, but Dipper and Smith made the remaining runs to win the match shortly after 3 o'clock. Score:—

	1st Inns.	2nd Inns.
Glamorgan	155	50
Gloucestershire	163	44 (1)

THE "DOUBLE EVENT."

Three players—P. G. H. Fender (Surrey), Kennedy (Hants), and Astill (Leicestershire)—have now, like Woolley, scored a thousand runs and taken a hundred wickets in first-class matches this season. All three completed the double feat in the matches now in progress.

CO. DUBLIN v. COL. CHALLONER'S XI.

This match will be played to-day at Rathmines at 11 o'clock. Ladies will be admitted free. The following will represent Co. Dublin:—L. Bookman (R. and S.P.U.), J. G. Heaslip (D.U.), W. Harrington (Co. Kildare), A. P. Kelly (Phœnix), G. N. Kelly (D.U.), J. F. Kempster (Leinster), E. L. Kidd (Phœnix), R. H. Lambert (Leinster), P. Murphy (Pembroke), R. W. Power (Pembroke), D. R. STANLEY COCHRANE CUP.

The two opening ties in the Stanley Cochrane Cup Tournament, originally fixed for Tuesday last, were brought off yesterday at the A.I.P.C., Phœnix Park, in fine but blustery weather. There is an entry of five teams; each must play the other, and the tournament will be decided by wins, or, if necessary, by goals. There was a fine attendance in the members' enclosure, and the play throughout was closely followed.

LIFFEY BANK (3) v. ARDSALLAGH (2).

There was very little open play in the first chukkar. Captain Wyndham Quin was called upon to clear in the first minute, and then Mr. O'Reilly and Mr. M'Cann carried the ball to the other end. Liffey Bank, however, were back again shortly afterwards, but the ball was sent wide several times, and the chukkar was blank. Liffey Bank went into the lead early in the second chukkar. Colonel Browne Clayton got off in a grand gallop, with Captain Wyndham Quin at his heels, and when well within scoring distance the former missed the ball. Mr. Arnott, however, got on from a short clearance, and hit through. No alteration was made in the score before the change of ponies, but at the start of the third period Ardsallagh broke away from a throw in at midfield, and Mr. M'Cann hit the equalising goal. Liffey Bank made one great burst subsequently, and had Mr. M'Cann well beaten, but Captain Wyndham Quin got up in time to effect a fine clearance. In the last chukkar Mr. Daly obtained the lead for Liffey Bank, and Captain Wyndham Quin equalised, following good play by Mr. Wilkinson, but the others came again from the throw-in, and Mr. Arnott hit the winning goal just on the bell. Teams:—

Liffey Bank—Mr. T. R. Leonard, Mr. Maxwell Arnott, Mr. James Daly, and Colonel Browne Clayton (back).

Ardsallagh—Mr. J. Wilkinson, Captain R. Wyndham Quin, Mr. H. J. O'Reilly, and Mr. A. M'Cann (back).

RAGLANS (5) v. CULMULLEN (2).

In this match Culmullen had a pull of 4 points on handicap, and conceded 2 goals. But Raglans were, if anything, the better side in the first chukkar, and but for the splendid defence put up by Major Kirkwood they must have added to their 2 goals allowance. Captain Daly, however, hit a fine goal for them in the second chukkar, but Mr. Leonard scored one for Culmullen before the change of ponies. Hard galloping was the order in the third period, but nothing was scored. Mr. Slocock and Captain Daly tried hard to get through, but Major Kirkwood played a very sound game at back, and several times saved his side when all seemed lost. Raglans increased their lead at the start of the last chukkar. The others attacked from the throw-in, and hit through from close range, but Raglans came again in a rare gallop, and a good effort by Mr. Slocock was improved upon by Captain Daly, who registered a fifth for his side. Teams:—

Raglans—Mr. W. Fitzgerald, Captain B. Daly, Mr. W. V. Slocock, and Mr. J. W. Shackleton (back).

Culmullen—Mr. J. Leonard, Mr. B. T. O'Reilly, Major Scott, and Major Kirkwood (back).

IRISH TEAM FOR AMERICA.

INTERNATIONAL POLO.

An All-Ireland polo team left Southampton yesterday on the White Star Liner, Majestic, on a visit to America, in response to an invitation issued by the American Polo Association. The team, which will take the field under the captaincy of Captain F. A. Gill, will compete during September in the American Open Championship and other tournaments. In addition to Captain Gill, the Ireland side will include Captain Lingard Goulding, Mr. J. A. B. Trench, and Mr. G. V. Douglas. Major Vivian Lockett, the International polo player, also sailed on the Majestic.

SEWELL'S HORSE SHOW SALES.

The Horse Show Sales held annually by Messrs. Sewell, Son, and Simpson were begun yesterday in the Repository, Lower Mount street, when a catalogue of 100 lots of hunters and harness horses was put under the hammer. Owing to the complete absence of English and Continental buyers, however, business ruled somewhat slack, except in the case of the made hunter, anything in that category realising good prices. For the sale of hunters, which begins in the Veterinary Paddock, Ballsbridge, this morning at 10 o'clock, there is a big entry, including several prize winners in the hunting classes. To-morrow's sale in the Repository, Lower Mount street, for which there is also a capital entry, will start at the same hour, so as to allow intending purchasers on each day ample time to get to Phœnix Park for the first race.

CYCLING.

WORLD'S AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Maurice P. Peeters, the amateur cyclist sprint champion of Holland, and ex-amateur champion of the world, who finished second to the Englishman, H. Johnson, in the final of the world's amateur sprint championship at New Brighton on July 29th has issued a challenge to Johnson for another match for the world's amateur championship. He believes that had he not been delayed by a puncture the title would have been his.

TIGHTNESS OF MONEY.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE "FINANCIAL NEWS" OF TO-DAY.)

The actuality of dearer money is having a pronounced effect upon the Investment market. Yesterday the Gilt-edged group was particularly idle, and in the comparatively few instances where prices were changed they mostly receded slightly. This may be attributed to the tightness of outside money. That, in turn, is to be accounted for chiefly by the scarcity of funds caused by heavy liquidation of borrowings by the Government, while recent extensive withdrawals of money for holiday purposes have further accentuated what need only, however, be reckoned as a more or less temporary stringency. In order to meet the present conditions in Lombard street there has been a mild invasion of the Gilt-edged market, and the consequent realisation of stocks is responsible for the slightly downward trend of prices which is now being manifested. Although War Loan has weakened slightly, Consols are giving a further welcome evidence of strength, albeit yesterday's advance in price was merely of small moment. National War Bonds shaded off a trifle. Indian and Colonial issues were virtually neglected. In the Trunk market, Grand Trunk Pacific 4 p.c. Debs. were again a lively feature. They rose a couple of points to 37½, and the wide nature of the fluctuations is illustrated by the fact that business was transacted during the day at as high a price as 39 and as low as 35½.

LONDON STOCKS LITTLE CHANGED.

TONE QUITE STEADY.

Little occurred to disturb the quietness of the Stock markets. The tone remained quite steady, and there were again firm spots, though business was on an extremely small scale. Home Rails were generally good. Industrials had many good places, and Mines displayed a firmer tendency. Gilt-edged securities did not come in for much attention, and movements were not important. War Loan 4 per cent. rose ⅛, and Conversions were ⅛ better, but Funding Loan lost ⅛.

Stagnation marked the FOREIGN MARKET. French Loan repeated the previous quotation, and the only quotable changes were a loss of a point in Japan 4½ per cent. First Series and in Portuguese Threes. German Threes were quoted rather narrower at 1⅛ to 1⅝.

HOME RAILS were by no means active, but the tone remained good. Caledonian Deferred rose ⅜, Metropolitan District and Great Northern Deferred both improved ½, and North-Eastern Consols and Metropolitans enjoyed a rise of a point.

CANADIAN PACIFICS repeated 159, and Trunks did not move. Central Argentine rose ¾, and Buenos Ayres Great Southern improved ¾. Mexicans were on the dull side. The Ordinary lost ½, and the 8 per cent. Preference and 6 per cent. Pref. both shed a point. Central Uruguay were a point lower. Leopoldinas held their recent rise, but United of Havana lost ½.

OIL SHARES BRIGHTER.

RISES IN THE LEADERS.

Transactions in Oil Shares yesterday were of a light character, but the firmer tendency which developed overnight in the leading counters was well maintained. Owing to the small amount of business passing, however, prices moved within narrow limits for the greater part of the day, and until well on in the afternoon showed little change on Wednesday's closing levels. About an hour before the close of the "House" Mexican Eagles came into prominence, the final quotation showing an appreciable advance. Other leading shares also displayed strength in the afternoon, Royal Dutch further improving, and Shells also finishing at an advance. All the more important shares left off with a distinctly firm appearance. Among Trinidad descriptions Centrals were again being quietly picked up, and maintained their recent improvement. Rumanian issues had a slightly harder tendency, gains being marked in Rumanian Consolidated and Phœnix. Business in other descriptions was of an unimportant character and had little influence upon quotations. Mexican Eagles, which kept in the neighbourhood of 3 for the greater part of the day, enjoyed a sharp spurt at the end, bear repurchases assisting the upward movement and the closing street price of 3⅛, leaving the shares 1/16 up on the day. The 8 p.c. Prefs. improved ⅛ to 3, and the 7 p.c. Prefs. strengthened to 20s. Royal Dutch, which during the early hours were no better than 35⅝, responded to the improvement shown in the opening price received from New York, and at the close an advance of ⅜ was registered at 36½. Shells were a firm market all day, and strengthened in sympathy with other leading shares in the late dealings, a gain of 1/16 being finally recorded at 4 11/16. The two Preference issues left off steady and unchanged. Burmahs remained at 5⅛, but the 8 p.c. Prefs. closed slightly easier at 25s. 10½d. The Anglo-Persian issues finished without alteration. RUBBER SHARES HEAVY.

FALL IN RAW MATERIAL.

The conditions which have ruled in the Rubber market recently were repeated. Business was of the slightest extent and the tone was heavy. Ledbury lost 2s. 6d., Pataling shed 2s., Kasintoe declined 1s. 3d., and Grand Central eased 10½d. Several smaller losses were shown by Anglo-Dutch at 26s. 6¾d., and Rubber Trusts at 14s. 6d. were unchanged. The price of raw rubber fell to 6⅞d. per lb.. Closing prices:—

LONDON MINING MARKET UNINTERESTING.

FEW CHANGES RECORDED.

Conditions prevailing in the Stock Exchange yesterday left much to be desired, and except in a few instances transactions were on a considerably reduced scale. Fears of dearer money affected the Gilt-edged market, and the approach of the account was, no doubt, responsible for the irregularity displayed in most sections. In the Mining department there was again a large turnover in Kaffirs, the lead being taken by Central Mining, Rand Mines, and Crown Mines, the former again showing an appreciable improvement on local and Continental buying. Cape favourites, however, were inclined to hang fire in view of the declaration of options to-day and the carry-over on Monday. In relation to the recovery in the New York rate of exchange, gold fell a further 2d. to 92s. 1d. per oz. Randfontein issues were well supported, and Consolidated Langlaagte and Langlaagte Estate came in for attention on rumours of a possible merging of interests.

In Rhodesians, Chartered came in for more attention, and closed higher, while Cam and Motor were also better. The bullishness of Paris was reflected in De Beers, which rose sharply, but otherwise the Diamond department remained steady. Tin improved a further 17s. 6d. to £161 11s. 3d. per ton, but this failed to arouse any interest in the Share market. West Africans were on a dull side, and Akim again finished lower. Barriers were in mild request, and with the shortage of supplies on this side prices were marked up, but Australian Gold Shares were content to maintain previous levels. Idleness characterised the Copper section, Rio Tinto being finally unaltered. Russo-Asiatic were a sticky market, and in other directions transactions were few and far between, the small number of changes recorded calling for no special comment. Silver was ⅛d. lower at 34⅛d. per oz. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

Dividend hopes are responsible for the recent activity of the shares of the Calico Printers' Association. The announcement for the year ended June 30 last is expected shortly, and the market talks of a coming distribution of 10 p.c. If such a dividend is forthcoming, it will be a reversion to the return made for 1919-20. It will be recalled that twelve months ago no more than 5 p.c. was paid on the Ord. Shares, and the accounts for the year then covered could not be issued, pending a settlement with the Inland Revenue authorities. In the event of 10 p.c. being announced, it will serve as an indication of confidence on the part of the directors in the immediate future of the textile industry. Otherwise the conservative attitude of a year ago may be maintained.

There are indications, says a Belfast correspondent, of a revival in shipbuilding in Belfast. Instructions have been received to begin building an Atlantic transport liner of 17,000 tons, and to resume work on two large oil tankers. Resumptions of other suspended work are likely in the next few weeks. During the depression the number of men employed in Belfast yards has fallen from 30,000 to 20,000.

Because they believe that cheaper steel will bring back good trade, some thousands of Sheffield steelworkers, in all the heavy steel departments, members of a number of trade unions, have agreed to accept big cuts in the war bonus. Piece-workers have agreed to accept a reduction of 2/6 per shift in three instalments, and the 47-hour week men have agreed to accept reductions of 16/6 per week, also in three instalments. The cuts will be made so that the last will be on September 25. The first was on Monday last.

J. and P. Coats announced yesterday their fourth quarterly dividend of 9d. per share on the Ordinary capital, which comprises 14,750,000 £1 shares. This brings the annual distribution up to 15 per cent., the same return being made in 1920 and 1921. In each of the two previous years a bonus of 2½ per cent. was also paid, but as these were not announced until the production of the annual report in November, it is still quite likely that the shareholders will receive still another 6d. per share.

Exceptional heat has caused forest fires in Sardinia and Greece.

INDUSTRIALS IRREGULAR.

SMALLER BUSINESS.

An irregular tendency characterised the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday, and business showed some falling off, but firm spots were still in evidence here and there. Nitrates exhibited firmness, and several improvements occurred. Marconis held their ground at 2 13/32 in the Wireless group, and the Prefs still ruled at 2 1/16. Marines hardened to 1 13/32, but Canadians lost a few pence at 10s. 9d. Cables continued firm. Anglo-American gained a point at 60½, Eastern Extensions strengthened to 18⅜, and Globes to 19 1/16. Telephone Manufacturing Bonds fell ¼ to 25⅜. Among Miscellaneous Trading concerns, Lever 7 p.c. strengthened to 19s. 10½d., and the 8 p.c. to 19s. 4½d. A. and F. Pears rose 5 points to 87½, and De Treys rallied to 14s. 6d. Arghans improved to 5s., and Borax Def. to 1 11/32. Magadi Soda gave way to 7s. 9d. Claudius Ash fell 1/16 to 15/16, as did also Harrison and Crosfields to 1 1/16, while Dunlops lost the turn at 8s. 3d. Mappin and Webb Prefs. relapsed to 1 1/32, Wall Paper Def. to 7s., and Waring and Gillow Prefs. eased to 8s. 9d. Thomas de la Rue Debs. weakened to 98. Among Motors, S.T.D. were flat at 9s. 6d., and the Pref. at 11s. 6d. For some days past Courtaulds have been on the dull side, and yesterday was no exception, for they closed 3d. lower at 50s. 3d. Calicos also lost that much at 21s. 9d., after being dealt in at up to 22s. 6d. Coats still ruled at 65s., Fine Spinners at 40s., Sewing Cottons at 2 5/32, and Amalgamated Cottons at 14s. 9d.

In the Stores group, Whiteleys were a firm spot, closing 6d. higher at 39s. 6d. Among Caterers, J. Lyons lost 1/16 at 4 1/16, and A.B.C. 3d. at 33s. Liptons still ruled at 25s. 6d. In the Brewery list, Bartholomay Prefs. shed ¼ at 1¼, and Ind Coopes 1/16 at 1 13/16, while Bass were also that much lower at 1⅞. Truman Hanbury Prefs., however, strengthened to 6, and in the Hotels list Strand Hotel 7 p.c. Prefs. hardened to 1 1/16. Among Tobaccos, B.A.T.S. changed hands at up to 87s. 6d., but closed a few pence lower at 86s. 9d., despite the interim dividend announcement. Imperials continued at 68s., though the "B" Prefs. eased to 23s. 6d. Bays recovered to 6⅞ in the Land group, and the Prefs. were maintained at 4⅞. Renewed weakness was displayed by the I.C. Gas Stocks, which closed 2½ lower at 147½, with bargains recorded at 145. This weakness is said to be due to an intimation having been received from the German Government to the effect that the Clearing House instalment of £2,000,000 now due cannot be paid. Among Iron and Steel issues Armstrongs hardened to 15s. 9d., but Vickers Tax-free Prefs. came on offer, and closed a few pence lower at 17s. ex div. The Ord. kept the price at 12s. Pease and Partners were again subjected to realisations and gave way to 26s., while Cammell Lairds relapsed to 13s. 6d. and Hadfields fell 1s. to 22s. 6d. ex div. Babcock and Wilcox improved to 58s. 9d., and Sheffield Steels continued firm on expectations of a statement regarding the position of the company, and further strengthened to 2s. 7½d.

IRISH BANK REPORTS.

BANK OF IRELAND.

The delayed accounts for the half-year to 30th June, held up for one month by reason of the difficulty of getting returns from some of the branches in the South of Ireland, were issued yesterday, and, on the whole, reflect undiminished success and prosperity. Notes, etc., in circulation stand at £7,803,000, a decrease of £774,000; Government and other public accounts at £6,888,000, an increase of £2,549,000; deposit and current account balances, £35,572,000, an increase of £1,927,700. The assets total £54,485,482; cash figured at £6,556,000, a decrease of £724,693; British Government debt £2,630,769, the same; investments £31,969,590, an apparent increase of £12,706,000, but a year ago British Treasury bills for £5,400,000 do not now appear as a separate item. Bills and advances, etc., have fallen by £2,691,000 to £12,771,000, and bank premises £557,795, an increase of £83,038. The net profits were £268,515, an increase of £8,971, which, added to £43,625, an increase of £1,166, brought in, left £312,140, an increase of £10,136 to dispose of. The reserve is strengthened by £120,000, against £70,000 to depreciation and other contingencies and £50,000 to reserve a year ago. The balance forward, £71,679, shows an increase of £25,987. The slump in accommodation required is, no doubt, due to the spirit of unrest throughout the country interfering with business enterprise. The Reserve Fund was raised by £240,000 during the year to £1,260,000, the highest figure at which it has ever stood.

MUNSTER AND LEINSTER.

The balance sheet of the Munster and Leinster Bank for the half-year ended 30th June last was published yesterday. It affords remarkable evidence of continued prosperity. Despite the disturbed state of the country, the fall in the price of cattle, and a low deposit rate, the deposits have reached the record figure of £30,150,362, an increase of close upon £2,700,000 in the twelve months. With cash assets of £7,158,478 and immediately convertible securities of £11,225,987, the liquid assets of the bank amount to £18,384,465, a sum which represents over 60 per cent. of the bank's entire liability to the public. Having regard to the fact that the bank had in previous years fully provided for any depreciation of their securities, the substantial rise in Gilt-edged Stocks during 1922, must make the present value of their investments much higher than the figure at which they stand in the balance sheet. Advances to customers also show an increase, the figure of £12,884,000, at which they now stand, being higher than that of June, 1921, by £872,000. The nett earnings of the bank were substantially higher than in the corresponding period of 1921, and a dividend at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, less income tax, has been paid. A sum of £50,000 has been placed to contingencies account, and one of £10,000 in reduction of bank premises, while the enhanced balance of £39,000 has been carried forward. The bank's Reserve Fund of £900,000 exceeds the paid-up capital by the large margin of £500,000.

MESSRS. GANLY'S SHEEP SALE.

Messrs. Ganly, Son's and Co. held their opening auction of their sixty-third annual autumn sheep sales in the Dublin Cattle Market on Wednesday, when upwards of 2,000 sheep were offered. There was a good attendance of buyers, and with a keen demand for all lots a good clearance was effected. Roscommon ewes, top figure 90/- each; best Galway ewes, 75/- to 58/-; Cheviot and Wicklow Mountain sorts 63/- to 50/-. No Scotch horney ewes on offer. Store lambs, 51/6 to 44/-. Messrs. Ganly's next auction of ewes, wethers, and lambs will be held on Wednesday next, 23rd inst., commencing at 12 o'clock.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS STILL SCARCE.

MARKS CHEAPER.

The position as regards loanable credit was by no means comfortable, despite the recent borrowings from the bank. There was a great deal of irregularity, while at the same time strength was shown by discounts. The bank return gave satisfaction, showing a reserve of £1,250,000 better, and a substantial rise in market balances. Night money commanded 2 to 3 p.c., while 2½ p.c. was asked for Loans until early next week. Fixtures, as a rule, were being renewed at 1½ p.c.

Bank Rate (Discount) changed July 13, 1922, 3%.

In Discounts, transactions were limited, and a feature in the afternoon was the offering of second-hand Treasury Bills, which were done at 2⅛ p.c., after being called 2⅛ 2 3/16 p.c. Most houses were quoting practically 2⅛ p.c. for fine three months' bank bills. One of the clearing banks was working in September Treasuries, and got quite a quantity at 2⅛ p.c., although sellers were not pleased.

Gold weakened 2d. per oz. to 92s. 1d. Bar silver was ⅛d. down for both spot and forward delivery at the common price of 34⅛d. per oz.

There was a quieter atmosphere in the foreign exchange market. German marks were a little cheaper but inactive, with the rate in the neighbourhood of 4,750, while French francs moved up to 56.50-56.60, Belgium being 59.50-59.60. Noteworthy was the strength of sterling on New York, where it was quoted 4.47½-4.48, while, on the other hand, demoralisation in Austrian crowns became more grave, with 320,000-350,000 quoted for the £, and at the same time Polish marks were offered at 32,000-34,000. Czecho-Slovakia kept firm at 150-160. The following are closing quotations:—

AMERICAN PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP.

The results in the fourth round of the American Professional Championship were:—Gene Sarazen (Pittsburgh) beat Jock Hutchison (Glenview), 3 and 1; R. Cruickshank (Shackamason) beat Charles Rowe (Oakmont), John Golden (Tuxedo) beat Tom Kerrigan (Suvanoy), Emmett French (Youngstown) beat A. Loeffler (Brackenridge).

Despite the fact that Sarazen is the open champion of America, his defeat of Jock Hutchison came in the nature of a surprise. Cruickshank was formerly a prominent Scottish amateur.

The two matches in the semi-final round of the National Professional Championship of the United States, at Pittsburg, were played yesterday over 36 holes. Gene Sarazen, National Open Champion, was opposed to the former Scottish amateur, R. A. Cruickshank, and at the end of the first round Sarazen was 2 holes up. Emmett French played John Golden, and at the 18th hole French held a lead of 4 holes.

PROFESSIONAL COMPETITION AT WOODBROOK.

The September competition among the Leinster professionals for Sir Stanley Cochrane's prizes, which will bring the present series to a close, will be played on the 19th at Woodbrook, Bray. An open competition will be held by the Woodbrook Club a few days previously, probably on the 16th.

HIGHLAND TOURNAMENT.

There was some brilliant play in the match stages of the Highland Tournament at Pitlochry, Perthshire, yesterday. Outstanding was some remarkable golf by T. Osgood (St. Andrew's University), the holder, who beat M. Richardson (Northumberland) in the second round, after the latter had beaten Major Cecil Hutcheson in the first round. Osgood thus qualified to meet R. MacNaughton (Northumberland) in the semi-final to-day. The other semi-final is between A. MacCallum (Edinburgh University) and W. Guild (Murrayfield).

AUDITORS' REPORT.

We have examined the above Balance Sheet, dated the 30th June, 1922, with the balances on the books at the Head Office in Dublin and with the Returns from the Branches, as certified by the Agents and Sub-Agents. We have satisfied ourselves as to the correctness of the Cash Balances at the Head Office and at the Bank of England; we have verified the Investments of the Bank as well as the Securities held against Cash at Call and Short Notice; and the Bills discounted held at the Head Office have been produced to us.

We have obtained all the information and explanations we have required, and, in our opinion, such Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the Bank's affairs according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as shown by the Books at the Head Office and the Certified Returns from the Branches.
